If action is what you wanted to see, there was a lot of at Ag Progress Days, Penn State University's annual agricultural showcase in which numerous agribusinesses participate and thousands come to watch. A demonstration of tillage equipment and practices was just one of many highlights of the 3-day event.

Ag Progress was in full bloom

ROCK SPRINGS — An estimated 32,000 people came to see the East's largest outdoor agricultural exhibition, held here this week at Penn State University's vast and beautifully situated research farms. There was plenty for all to see, whether their interest was in equipment, forages, research, homemaking, modern living, hobbies, farm management, and much more.

Held under ideal weather conditions during each of the three days, Ag Progress Days attracted large crowds during each day from throughout the Commonwealth and neighboring states. Ag Progress Days is regarded as one of the largest and finest exhibitions of its type in the country.

The roar of the world's largest tractors and sophisticated farm equipment ushered in the 1978 Ag Progress Days on Tuesday as thousands watched. Visitors had the opportunity to walk over the several hundred acre site on foot or board farm wagons and buses which provided regular transportation.

Dr. Joseph Harrington, professor of agronomy and field days chairman said a record 210 commercial exhibitors displayed about $20 million worth of equipment, ranging from silos to kitchen aids.

Farm renovated in one day

Editor's Note: Project Clearwater, a massive undertaking to turn a neglected farm property into one which would serve as a model for conservation, took place last Saturday. This is the first in a series of reports on the event.

By DIETER KRIEG

KNOXVILLE, Md. — Five-hundred volunteers and about 200 pieces of equipment were fired up for action last Saturday to turn a 245 acre run-down farm into a show-place. They accomplished their monumental task in just a day and their work stands as a model for soil and water conservation. Projects included everything from building diversion ditches and ponds to constructing a new hog

Swine fever alert proclaimed

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania's hog producers have been urged to be on guard against African swine fever (ASF) by State Agriculture Secretary Kent Shelhamer. Shelhamer said that the danger of ASF entering the United States has greatly increased with the diagnosis of the disease in the Dominican Republic, only 125 miles from Puerto Rico. See related story on page 96.

Shelhamer emphasized the danger of feeding raw or improperly cooked garbage to swine, which is permitted to licensed operators in Pennsylvania. African swine fever is spread primarily through infected pork scraps in garbage fed to the animals. The virus can live for long periods in pork from infected hogs and can pass through the food chain without affecting humans or any other animal, but once

LANCASTER — The culmination of long hours spent on project work came Thursday night to Lancaster County 4-H'ers as they were honored for their accomplishments at the annual 4-H Achievement program held at the Farm and Home center. Called "4-H Achievement Carnival," the event was complete with clown and colored balloons, but was dominated by talent, pretty girls and lots of awards.

Suzy Howell, New Holland R3, was chosen as the 1978 Senior 4-H queen in the contest which included a preliminary judging earlier. Suzy represented the Garden Spot 4-H Club, and said, "I never expected to win it in a million years. I'm very happy." Suzy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Howell. She was crowned by the 1977 4-H Queen, Kim Weaver.

The Rough and Tumble Engineers Historical Association of Kinzers, Lancaster County, held their annual Threshermen's Reunion last week. It's an event which draws enthusiastic crowds every year. Coverage of the activities begin on page 56.

At Pennfield, we formulate feeds and feeding programs with your profit in mind.

"All feed companies are alike." If you believe that statement, you could be missing an opportunity to increase your output of eggs, pork or milk—without increasing your costs.

At Pennfield, our basic goal is to help our customers make more money. We believe we can accomplish this for you, too. For these reasons:

- Customized feeding programs. We specifically tailor a program to your operation, not to an "operation like yours."
- Nutritionally superior feeds. We go a step beyond many conventional feeds. Our feeds have Optimum Nutrient Density (most profitable nutrient level per pound of feed) and contain high-quality protein for balanced amino acid nutrition.

- Quality in, quality out. We chemically analyze all incoming feed grains for pesticide residues and toxins... and all finished feeds for overall quality and nutrient content.

- Technical service. We're responsive to your needs—by phone or on your farm.

- A local company. We buy our feed grains locally; shipping savings are passed on to customers. Our feeding programs are developed based on local conditions. We do test work and field trials based on local conditions.

These and other Pennfield advantages are helping hundreds of new customers increase their profits. We can do the same for you. But you must take the first step by phoning or writing us. Do it today.

August 24, 1978

Compared with the previous week's close - through midweek, prices on slaughter steers were 75-1.00 higher than the dull closing trade of previous week, and heifers were 1.00-1.50 higher. Cows were firm to 50 cents higher and bulls firm to 1.00 higher.

Four day receipts 13,600 as compared 13,800 previous week and 15,200 a year ago. The fed cattle trade followed an erratic pattern during the week under review. Prices advanced sharply on the opening session in reflection of a much improved carcass trade late the previous week which carried over into the forepart of the current period; trading dulled, however, on later sessions and part of the substantial advance was lost. Most interests came into the week in need of cattle for immediate requirements and were aggressive for numbers, but in later trading most were cautious and selective in view of the unstable carcass trade. Late demand was usually geared to immediate requirements the steer and heifer run included a fair percentage choice and a moderate volume choice and prime. Slaughter steers made up approximately 45 pct. of the week's supply and heifers 33 pct. Cows comprised 12 pct. and feeders 6 pct.

STEERS: On Monday, load Choice and Prime 3-4 1326 lbs. 53.50, three loads same grade 3-4 1059-1125 lbs. 53.00-53.25. EDITORIAL COMMENTS By DIETER KRIEG, EDITOR

Actions speak louder than words

Twelve days ago, before a large gathering of the Midcontinent Farmers Association at the University of Missouri in Columbia, Mo., President Carter delivered his first major speech on agriculture since his arrival at the White House 19 months ago. The half-hour presentation was generally well received, which is saying something since a good number of Midwestern farmers had visited the nation's capital under somewhat unfriendly terms last Winter.

The phrases which won the President the most applause was his assurance to the farmers that he would not expand beef imports this year and would not permit unrestricted beef imports next year. He also emphasized that the is "strongly and permanently opposed to any price controls on meat or other farm products."

That's fine.

What Mr. Carter failed to clarify, however, is at what point he will begin to restrict beef imports next year (or on any other commodities, for that matter). What good is the idea of restricting beef imports if the point of restriction comes too late?

"The time for uncertainty and for unpredictable government-imposed embargoes on farm exports is over," Carter continued. It was one of many phrases which farmers welcomed and applauded. For the most part, President Carter's remarks deserved applause. His speech was filled with good thoughts and ideas. The unfortunate thing about it all is that all that talk doesn't mean a thing. After having made scores of promises both during his campaign and since becoming president, and then reversing his position or ignoring the promises altogether, there is little credibility left in his speeches, regardless of how good they may sound.

Even if we credit the President with good intentions, his record is full of contradictions and broken promises. He often, tells the American public what they want to hear, but fails to deliver.

In his Missouri speech earlier this month, the President vowed to always protect the Capper-Volstead Act which gives direct protection to farmer cooperatives and in turn the family farmer. Let's hope he keeps his word on that, especially now while farmer cooperatives are under serious fire from some government agencies and consumer groups.

"I want to go as far as I possibly can to get the government out of the farm business of America. That is why the first few months after I took office I spent more hours working on the 1977 Food and Agriculture Act, I believe, than any other single piece of legislation," Mr. Carter stated.

Ironically, that same farm bill receives low scores from many farmers.

While the President claims pride in his farm background, and he has openly told farmers that they have a friend in the White House, his words and actions have consistently left a lot of doubt and disappointment among the citizens, whether they be farmers or non-farmers.

It'll be interesting to see if the President will become more of a farmer's friend through his actions, rather than just nice sounding speeches. He put a lot on the line when he addressed the Farmers Association in Missouri.

Letter to the editor

Tired of being 'milked'

Editor: This letter is in reference to the article in last week's (August 19) Lancaster Farming concerning Lehigh Valley Cooperative Dairy's recapitalization program. I, for one, am not in favor of any assessments unless certain criteria are met.

This assessment is extremely unfair to those producers who began shipping their milk to Lehigh Valley with the assumption that Lehigh Valley was in better financial shape than it

(Turn to Page 25)

THE 29th CHAPTER

Lesson for August 27, 1978

Background Scripture: Acts 28

Devotional Reading: Philippians 1:12-21.

The close of the Book of Acts is usually puzzling to the average reader. At last Paul arrives for trial in Rome. But instead of being thrown into a dungeon in preparation for a quick and speedy trial before Caesar, upon arrival, we are told, "Paul was allowed to stay by himself with the soldier that guarded him" (28:16). It seems a strange arrangement to us. The only thing suggestive of it in today's world is what we call "house arrest," a procedure sometimes followed today with important political prisoners. (We must conclude that it was more a matter local practice than Paul's importance.)

We Want To Hear

Another strange development is Paul's freedom to meet with and speak to the Jewish community in Rome. One would think that the prisoner would be restricted from pursuing the very activity that had gotten him into trouble in the first place. Without any hindrance, they come to his residence in great numbers to hear him.

In light of all the opposition and hostility he has experienced from Jewish communities in other locations, we also find surprising the attitude with which they greeted him:

"we desire to hear from you what your views are, for with regard to this sect (the church) we know that everywhere it is spoken against" (28:22). The very fact that others have been violently opposed does not stop them from listening to what Paul has to say.

The result of the hearing is equally interesting. We are told that "some were convinced by what he said, while others disbelieved" (28:24). We are told that they "disagreed" and some departed because they could not accept some of Paul's ideas, but there is no hint of dark plots or riots.

Preaching Unhindered

Thus, with the reader waiting for the grand climax - perhaps either escape of execution - we find that there is no climax at all. Instead, the book closes with these words:

And he lived there, two whole years at his own expense, and welcomed all who came to him, preaching the kingdom of God and teaching about the Lord Jesus Christ quite openly and unhindered.

That's the end of both chapter 28 and the whole Book of Acts. How Paul's life went on or ended is still simply a matter of conjecture and theory. The 28th chapter of Acts ends with Paul still working.

Thus, Acts is a kind of openended book. The Acts of the Apostles are presumed to continue on through Paul's time and into every era of the church. Paul's story ends with chapter 28 but the acts of the apostles and disciples continue on as countless others follow in their footsteps, preaching and teaching of Jesus the Christ and witnessing to his power throughout the world. The acts of the apostles go on beyond chapter 28. They never end!

TO CONTROL WEEDS IN NEW ALFALFA

Early August seedings of alfalfa should be off to a good start. However, the weeds will also be growing provided a herbicide has not been used. Too many times we get requests from growers on how to kill the weeds in alfalfa after the growth is about a foot or more high.

These weeds must be killed when small; otherwise, it is hard to kill weeds without hurting the alfalfa plants. When the weeds are only one to two inches high the application of 2,4-D-B over the field will control most of the broad-leaf weeds. The grassy-type weeds are hard to kill after the field has been seeded; this requires an Eptam treatment just prior to seeding. The important thing to keep in mind is to kill the weeds when they are very small.

EO ELIMINATE JOHNSON GRASS

This sorghum-like grass is taking over on too many farms in this part of the state. I'm aware of infestation in which nothing seems to be done to control the weed. In corn there is little to do at this time of the year; this requires a spring treatment with Eradicane at planting time.

However, in other fields such as small grains, when the growth of the Johnson Grass reaches 2½ to 3 feet, the plants may be sprayed with Roundup for good control. These plants are very heavy seed producers; a few plants allowed to go to seed this fall will mean hundreds of plants next summer. Johnson Grass is very fast growing and will crowd out most farm crops. We urge land owners to make every effort to eliminate all plants from their farm.

TO KEEP ON TOP OF CATTLE MARKET

I can't remember when I have noticed as many empty feedlots in this part of the state. Many feeders are reluctant to fill their barns with cattle at current feeder prices. I believe that many are waiting until the larger runs of cattle hoping that prices may recede. I'm not in a position to predict what is going to happen in either the feeder or the finished cattle market.

However, I would suggest that cattle feeders get better informed on the market conditions and become more knowledgeable on prices and on the supplies of cattle. Frequent visits to the market, or have a representative there, will help make major decisions. I'm of the opinion there's little chance of much drop in feeder prices this fall; cattle numbers are down and feed supplies are very ample.

TO APPLY LIME

Early fall is a good time to be applying lime to open fields. For land that is to be seeded to legumes in 1979, now would be the best time to correct any soil acidity. For lime to have time to work properly it should be applied well in advance of a new legume seeding; also, it should be well mixed with the topsoil to do the most good.

The practice of applying lime on top of the soil for a new legume seeding is not recommended. Keep in mind that heavy lime trucks can ruin a wet field next spring. Give lime a chance to correct acidity both in terms of time and mixture.

Big show up in the air

DOVER, Del. — U.S. Air Force Thunderbirds will streak overhead in dazzling acrobatic displays as the highlight of Dover Air Force Base's Community Appreciation Day Open House September 10 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The public is invited to the annual affair which this year pays tribute to Delaware's former U.S. Senator John J. Williams.

Besides the Thunderbirds, other Air Force aircraft will be on display as well, including the C-5 Galaxy, the world's largest airplane. This and several other aircraft will be open for the public to walk through all during the open house.

Also appearing will be the Air Force Academy's parachute team to perform a skydiving and parachute demonstration. The team is composed of cadets in the academy at Colorado Springs, Colo. They have won many awards for their jumping skills in national meets.

Since the Appreciation Day will take place on a Sunday, the public is also invited to attend worship services in the two base chapels.

A Roman Catholic Mass will be held in Chapel 1 at 11 a.m. and in Chapel 2 at 12:15 p.m. Protestant services will be held in Chapel 2 at 11 a.m. and in Chapel 1 at 12:15 p.m. Chapel 1 is on the base property, while Chapel 2 is located in the base housing area.

A Military Airlift Command display will also be available for visitors so they can have a better idea of how Dover Air Force Base fits into the overall command and Air Force missions.

Flemington Fair Aug. 29 - Sept. 4

FLEMINGTON, N.J. — Farmer's Day at the Flemington Fair will be August 30, this year with the rain date September 1.

Farmer's Day at the Fair is a tradition. It is a day full of special attractions for farm folks and those interested in the agriculture of the area. The Farm Tractor Pulling Contest begins at 10 a.m. and will continue until completion. This year again there will be a class for antique tractors (37 years or older). The weight transfer system will be used for the tractor pulling. This will make the pulling contest the same as the national contest held in other areas. The contest in the morning and the Modified Tractor Pull in the evening.

The State 4-H Dairy Show with all breeds being judged on this day provides special interest to dairymen in the area. The colored breeds will be judged in the morning and Holsteins in the afternoon.

The fruit and vegetable exhibits will have been judged and the displays are at their best during the early days of the Fair. The area nurserymen will have a display in the same tent with the Flower Show.

The special feature of the grandstand show on Farmer's night will be the Modified Tractor Pull (4 classes). This should make an interesting evening along with the regular grandstand show.

The State Dairy Princess Contest will be held on Tuesday, August 29 which means the new State Dairy Princess will reign all day on Farmer's Day.

Dry cow is champion at York Holstein show

YORK — When the York Black and White Show ended last Thursday afternoon, banners, trophies and ribbons had been picked up by breeders from all corners of the county.

"It's unusual to award the grand champion honors to a dry cow; but I'm doing just that," observed judge Eugenia Francisco, of Andfar Holsteins in New Jersey.

Claiming that unique honor was nationally-renowned All-American cow, "Northcroft Ella Elevation," a tall and powerful 4-year-old Elevation daughter owned by 4-H'er Paul Knight of Airville.

Not only a beauty to behold in the show ring, the cow carries her weight in the milking herd as well. During her first lactation, she pumped out a 305-day record of 28,161 pounds of milk and 946 of fat to easily walk off with the class production award as well.

The Knight family's Woodbine Farms entry also took the first place in the senior calf class.

The premier exhibitor banner was earned by Tom and June Boyer, Sunnybend Farms, York. The Boyers showed the top three animals in the 2-year-old class; and the first place animal in that class, "Sunnybend Apollo Brett," then finished up as the reserve senior and grand champion. Another blue ribbon went to the Boyer's entry in the senior yearling fresh class.

Awarded the premier breeder banner was Leroy and Joyce Bupp, Bupplynn Farms, Seven Valleys. Included in their overall winnings were the first place senior yearling and production awards in the 3-year-old and 4-year-old cow classes.

A tall stylish intermediate calf, shown by Paul and Kathy King of Kingway Farms, Delta, was named junior champion. A November calf, she's sired by Harrisburg Gay Ideal and carried the Kingway breeding on her maternal side.

The reserve grand champion steer was shown by Cheryl Fought, Carlisle, who is a cousin to the grand champion winner. Her steer came from the heavyweight division, and weighed 940 pounds.

In the lightweight class, Kim Brackbill's 785 pound steer took the lightweight championship. The Mechanicsburg R2 4-H'er shared the limelight with her sister, Bonnie Brackbill, who showed the lightweight reserve champion steer. That animal weighed 765 pounds.

In the mediumweight class, the reserve champion under Angela Fought was Roxanne Leib, Mechanicsburg R2, who showed a steer weighing 890 pounds.

The reserve champion in the heavyweight classes was shown by Chris Hopple, Mechanicsburg R2, whose steer weighed 1005 pounds.

Three FFA'ers competed in their own division, with Harold Leib, Mechanicsburg R2, placing first, Paula Deitch, Mechanicsburg R2, taking second, and Tammy Hoy Bucher, Carlisle R6, named third.

Three separate fitting and showing contests were held also. First place in the junior contest went to Ron Kimmel, Shiremanstown, with David Barrick, Carlisle R5, placing second, and Allyson Sheaffer, Carlisle, taking third.

Karen Fought was named the first place intermediate fitter and shower. Second place in that division was won by Chris Hopple, and Kim Brackbill was third.

In the senior division, Cheryl Fought took the top position, followed by Roxanne Leib second, and Harold Leib, third.

Judge for the show was Don Sunday, York.

Angela Fought's steer was judged grand champion of the 1978 Carlisle Fair by Don Sunday of York. The Farm Credit Association trophy was presented by Walter Loy.

Grange royalty chosen

PERRY VALLEY — The Eighth Annual Region G Conference was held August 6, at the Perry Valley Grange Hall, Perry County. More than eighty attended the conference, with all the Pomona Granges of the Region represented.

Shirley Boldin, Region G Youth Chairman, was in charge of the opening session. Two workshops were held. They were "Deaf Awareness" and "Wildlife". While the workshops were being held for others, Gladys Sheffer, Region G Lecturer's Committee Member, met with the Lecturers in attendance to discuss the wind-up of Lecturer's programs for 1978, and to inform the Lecturers of what to expect in 1979.

A bus tour was taken in the late afternoon to the Little Buffalo State Park, where members had a chance to tour the tavern, grist mill and cross the covered bridge. Following the tour, a chicken bar-b-que supper was served.

The cake baking contest was won by Mrs. Lynn Frick, Cumberland County, for her white cake, and by Jeanne Snyder, Perry County, for her chocolate. Each won $5.

The highlight of the day was the choosing of the new prince, princess and young married couple for Region G Chosen for Prince was James Snyder, York County, son of the Penna. State grange master and Mrs. Snyder. The tiel of Princess was won by Ruth Walters, Centre County. Mr. and Mrs. Brian Woolsey was chosen Young Married Couple. They are members of Biglerville Grange, Adams County.

Special evening Gospel Music was presented by the "Chapelaes" of Dauphin County, under the direction of Galen Deibler.

A National Highway Traffic Safety Administration report estimates that 200,000 lives have been saved since the Safety Act of 1966, which began the chain of safety improvements in our passenger cars.

Klussendorf presentation moved

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Show officials at The North American International Livestock Exposition announced recently that the Klussendorf Award will be presented at the Louisville-based show for the first time this year. The Klussendorf Award is one of the most coveted honors annually bestowed on a dairy representative. The Klussendorf Award is made to the cattlemen in any of the dairy breeds who excels in endeavor, ability, and sportsmanship. Determination of the winner is made under the direction of the Klussendorf Memorial Club.

BACK TO NATURE IS THE ANSWER

For Pestilence and Disease

No truer words were ever spoken. Big healthy extra sweet cantaloupes with no spray. Likewise for a host of other vegetables and alfalfa. FERTRELL fertilizer, minerals and bacteria products which are according to nature, is what does it. You can't fool nature. AGRISPON (a bacteria product) both prevents the dreaded Aflatoxin corn disease, and produces crops same or more than fertilizer for only $6.50 an acre.

I (Eli Stoltzfus) have pioneered, used, advertized and sold bacteria products for 8 years to try to help the farmers. Now I find new and better products - one called BX which builds soil analysis substantially while the crop is growing, increasing corn silage 8 ton per acre in a test plot with $15 less expenditure. Diseased and otherwise hopeless asparagus received in one year to the best crop ever.

MINERAL 72 has 72 elements and is highly recommended by experts for soil and feed. Our initial shipment is only $125 per ton introductory price. Order quick before it is sold.

All these products should be applied in the fall for conditioning the soil for next year. That is the name of our game "conditioning." Chronic human diseases are not cured overnight either. Give the bacteria time to raise families. They increase humus rapidly and the soil softens like a sponge and velvet. Why don't you give it a try? We can visit you or ship the material.

Music, mini-plays, recreation, and leisure activities were featured in the theater tent. Featured were folk singers, chainsaw wood sculpture, techniques of backpacking, and home safety.

In the State Hay Crop Silage Show, Milton Hershey School Farms, Hershey, exhibited the grand champion sample, a legume and legume-grass mixed, over 40 per cent legume and more than 60 per cent water. Reserve grand champion sample was shown by Albert and Marian Hack, of RD2, Berwick, a low-moisture sample of legume and grass mixed, over 40 per cent legume.

First place awards by the various classes: Herman Espy, of Spruce Creek (five first places) mainly grass, less than 40 per cent legume; mainly grass and corn cob chop; legume and legume-grass mixed, corn and cob chop; wilted mainly grass, less than 40 per cent legume; and wilted small grains. Also winning first places were Vernon and Walter Cox, of RD2, West Alexander, direct cut grass sample, less than 40 per cent legume; and Dock View Dairy, of RD2, Lewisburg, low moisture small grains.

There were plenty of plows to inspect at Ag Progress.

Produce firm suspended

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The G. Fava Fruit Co., of Baltimore, Md., has had its Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act (PACA) license suspended for 30 days for flagrant and repeated violations of the act. PACA, administered by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, establishes a code of good business conduct for the produce industry.

The firm is not eligible to conduct business under PACA until Sept. 13. In addition, the officers, directors, and major stockholder - Andrew Joseph Fava, Samuel Joseph Fava, Frank A. Fava, John Armondo Fava, Theodore J. Potthast, Jr., Sara Margaret Fava, Marianna Rose Fava, Joseph A. Fava Trust, and James F. Fava - may not be employed by any PACA licensee during the suspension.

USDA officials charged the firm with failing to give true and correct accounting and make full, prompt payment of proceeds received from the sales of produce handled on consignment for numerous shippers.

Examination of the firm's records showed that, in many instances, sales of consigned produce were reported to shippers at prices lower than were actually paid by buyers, while other sales were reported at prices higher than were paid. Fava has since paid the shippers the amount found due by USDA.

Based on the evidence USDA ruled that FAVA had committed violations of the act and ordered its license suspended.

Chianina Field Day was bright and beautiful

By KENDACE BORRY
YORK — Last Saturday dawned bright, beautiful and hot for the over 500 people gathered for the Northeast Region of the American Chianina Association Field Day. Held at Lauxmont Farms, Wrightsville, owner Ron Kohr and manager Ernie Martinez welcomed the beef fanciers who made the trek for the festivities.

Activities throughout the day included judging contests, steer and heifer shows, a fun auction, showmanship competition, and a Chianina barbeque lunch.

In the steer competition, Lori Haas, an 18-year-old young lady from Douglasville, and a ten year member of the Berks County 4-H Beef Club showed the grand champion steer of the day. Weighing 1085 pounds, she informed her audience that "Walter" was a Chianina-Angus cross.

The reserve champion steer in the competition was shown by Bonnie Frey,

Strength in agriculture seen in farm coops

By JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent
BOZEMAN, Mont. —
"Cooperatives are a nice insurance policy," says Jay Hull, young dairyman from Westminster, Maryland.

Hull, and his wife Ilona, were among 186 young farm couples who examined the farm cooperative system during the 50th National Institute of Cooperative Education (NICE) held July 31 through August 3 at Montana State University. The annual convention, which draws attendance from hundreds of the nations cooperatives, is sponsored by the American Institute of Cooperation. This year's theme was "Cooperatives—People with a Purpose."

Breeders of registered Guernseys, the Hulls represented Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers of Baltimore. In addition to milking their herd of 50 cows, with an average of 11,400 pounds of milk and 545 of fat, the Hulls crop 150 acres in corn, barley and alfalfa.

Although in the career farming business only four years, Jay and Ilona are enthusiastic supporters of the philosophy of strength in agriculture through farm cooperatives.

"Doing business with a cooperative that has 50-year success is a cushion against the sudden loss of a milk market," Hull emphasizes.

He also feels that individual farmers, especially younger ones, have too little time to devote toward public relations tasks. Market bargaining and legislative lobbying are two valuable jobs also performed by cooperatives in a much more effective way than could be done by individuals.

As members of several farm cooperatives, the Hulls felt that the NICE meeting reinforced their basic concepts on the member-owned system of doing business.

One key outreach program of the Institute is toward the increased involvement of women in all phases of cooperative operation.

"A woman's place is in the meeting room; we need to involve more of them," advocates Ilona Hull, an outspoken opponent of separate "social-type" meetings for wives. "Women can double the efforts and brain-power in cooperatives. They need to promote more and work less in the fields and barns."

Representing the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Cooperative were Douglas and Evelyn Perrow of Lynchburg, Virginia.

"The biggest challenge to cooperatives in the future is their very existence and continued growth," warns Perrow. He notes that cooperatives help to act as regulators within the economy, stabilizing prices paid by independent buyers, thus making them suspect by non-cooperative organizations.

Perrow believes that broader commodity marketing should be a trend of the future. For instance, he would recommend that milk cooperatives expand into the marketing of related products such as yogurt, cheese and ice cream.

"Involved individual members are the strength of a cooperative," says the Virginia dairy farmer who milks 185 cows and crops 600 acres. Each member must be willing to accept some responsibility for public relations and legislative efforts, as well as encourage other farmers to participate in the business of cooperatives.

The Montana NICE was the second convention attended by the Perrows, who credit the confab with boosting their enthusiasm for the cooperative way of doing business.

"It's reassuring to know we have other people fighting for us and with us to keep the cooperative enterprise system," smiles the soft-spoken dairyman.

A third-generation member of Southern States represented that service-supply cooperative at the annual NICE meeting.

Donald and Denise Vaughn, Delta, Pennsylvania, farm in partnership with his father on a 90-Holstein, 600 acre dairy and hay-corn operation.

"Cooperatives are a way of life in our family" insists Donald. "My grandfather, Luther Bahn, was a charter member of Southern States."

Informed members make for better organizations, says Vaughn, who favors educational mini-sessions for increased member understanding of the day-to-day inner workings of cooperatives.

Another awareness measure he recommends is the setting up of regional young couples advisory boards, both for educations and to increase grass-roots input into administrative decisions.

The Vaughns were impressed both the background on cooperatives that they received at the conference and the concern of the national institute for the welfare of individual member-organizations.

An educational organization for farmer cooperatives, the American Institute of Cooperative was founded in 1925 and is headquartered in Washington, D.C. Members include a broad representation from marketing, supply and service cooperatives, banks and associations of the Farm Credit system and the nation's rural electric systems.

with strong-standing Pioneer® brand S76

You can count on Pioneer to help you grow and harvest extra wheat per acre. Plant Pioneer® brand S76 soft red winter wheat. You'll produce wheat with outstanding straw strength for easier harvesting, less lodging and shattering. And tests show you can produce bigger yields per acre compared to most "public" varieties like Abe and Arthur 71.

Pioneer variety S76 can mean the difference between average or high yields per acre. It can return more profit for you. Ask your Pioneer salesman for more facts on performance.

took top honors in the senior division, and she had to borrow a steer to get into the competition.

Janice Kaylor, Elizabethtown, placed second in that division.

In the intermediate section, the top shower was Diane Krause, Slatington. Second to her was Jim Glass, of Stanford, Kentucky.

row includes Joe Messick, Grant Grim, Christy Kohr, Dan Glass, and Chris Sunday.

Second to him was Brian Hess.

Jim Glass was also named the top judge of cattle in the junior division. Second, behind him, was Tim Hess, from Lancaster County, followed by Jeff Kading, Lincoln County, Kentucky, third.

In fourth position was Doug Deppen, Dauphin County, fifth was Diane Krause, Lehigh County, and sixth was Joe Messick, Dauphin County.

The site of the huge undertaking was the Warren Roelkey farm, located at the foot of South Mountain in Frederick County. The event was sponsored by the Catocin Soil Conservation District, with assistance from the Frederick Soil Conservation District. Numerous other organizations, groups, and agribusinesses took part to assist in the work that had to be done.

is. Would these producers have shipped it to Lehigh Valley had they know of these financial problems? This seems to be running into the same situation as in 1974 when management did not tell the whole truth. I resent having to pay a management team to run a milk co-operative, and then find that every few years they come back to the farmer for extra funds to support deficiencies in management. If there is no more money in the sale of milk than Lehigh Valley is presently able to receive, then management must be paid accordingly. It is my understanding that management should take steps so that every facet of the organization is doing well; however, we find that certain divisions of the plant are losing money, and every time it occurs, the management comes to the farmer to bail them out instead of correcting the situation so a profit can be made.

I don't foresee any bank that charges 8 to 10 per cent interest on their money, issuing certificates with no interest, only collateral. I, as a farmer, would do very well on that type of set-up.

I understand the assessment for 18 cents per hundredweight of milk shipped for the first six months of the year is illegal. According to my interpretation of the by-laws, only a maximum of 25 per cent can be removed, and cannot be retroactive. In talking with a great number of farmers, this also is their interpretation. If we are wrong, then perhaps we became involved in the "Dumb Farmer" syndrome, and believed what we were told by management.

Criticism without some design of betterment is usually not worth very much, so with this in mind, I will offer the following suggestions:

1. That management be reduced in salary with a clause for a percentage of the profits. In other words, without a profit realized within a reasonable amount of time, one cannot expect to share in monies designated for depreciation and capital improvements, or in the farmers' income.

2. If monies are needed from time to time to market surplus milk, those monies should be based on the total of excess milk produced by each farmer, as only excess milk apparently is causing the financial problem in the milk market. Thus, a farmer who is a good farmer and produces no excess milk would not share in the marketing expense incurred. Assessments should be monthly, current, and within limits set up by members and management.

3. That milk be sold not because it is cheap, but because it is better. The recent price war between milk marketing companies in New York City has been approached on a price only situation. This will probably continue until there is no profit. Lehigh Valley must, at some date, institute a program of better milk at a better price, brought about by an incentive program to those farmers who do a good job of producing milk. Milk with higher protein and solids, and a more flavorful taste has more public appeal, therefore, it should sell at a premium, at which a profit can be made for everyone. Milk has a long history of being a political football, and this can be removed by comparison selling a better product to the Consumer. If soda with little or no nutritional value can sell for $1.79 a gallon, then milk, with all of its nutrition, should sell for an equal amount. One commissioner on the milk board recently stated that she purchased milk from a "jug-type" farm store because of the better taste. Perhaps a lesson can be learned here.

4. Since July 17, according to The Allentown Morning Call (Thursday, August 17), 150 administrators and 60 union members have been laid off. It seems to me in a plant this size, there must have been a lot of "no-workers." When a farmer doesn't work, he cannot very well ship milk, so we would expect those in the plant to be doing a reasonable job in productivity for whatever position they hold. Also, no new employees should be added to the payroll unless it is absolutely essential.

5. If some capital cannot be raised from accounts receivable and current sales, this indicates to me a very poor job in management is occurring. Similar to this; a president from another milk co-operative received 1/2 cent per gallon for all the milk sold, which was sold at a loss, but he still received his 1/2 cent a gallon, at no profit to the co-operative. If, in fact, the sale of milk cannot support the industry that produces it, then perhaps the whole procedure of milk marketing at Lehigh Valley must be re-evaluated. To

100 LIQUID SILAGE FORTIFIER

A revolutionary new concept in improving silages. MOPRO Liquid Silage Fortifier is formulated to balance the major mineral and protein deficiencies of silages. MOPRO is added at the time of ensiling and is applied by metering equipment with very little handling cost. MOPRO will not corrode mild steel tanks or brass fittings and has no free ammonia odor to irritate the eyes or skin. MOPRO is a homogeneous solution of ammonia salts, urea, cane molasses, and minerals (except salt and calcium) in an efficient liquid carrier. It provides nitrogen for improved fermentation in the rumen and contains a mineral balance of phosphorous, magnesium, and trace elements. MOPRO 100 gives a resulting silage of approximately 14.3% protein.

give capital to management with a poor track record would be asking for a reassessment at a later date to recapitalize a deficient co-op. There is no room in milk marketing for shoddy management and/or workmanship. If, in fact, capital must be raised by farmers again such as was the case in 1933, 1974, and many other times, who's to say that within three years the 2½ million dollar recapitalization program won't need to be restocked with producers' money? The two million dollars for redemption of preferred stock is ideal for the older farmers who put their excess money and "faith" in preferred stock for their retirement; however, this is somewhat similar to our present Social Security Program in which those working have to support the retired (which I suppose is the way it will have to be). However, any paper issued today by Lehigh Valley will probably not be redeemable in the future unless another recapitalization program is carried out at some later date.

6. The efficiency of milk haulers, from farm to processing plant should be re-evaluated as milk is currently being hauled for as low as 32 cents per hundredweight, and as high as 42 cents, per hwt. for the same distance and volume of milk. The 32 cents hauler is a small, independent trucker, whereas the 42 cents hauler is from Lehigh Valley. Is there a ten-cent cost difference to make the same pick-up and delivery in similar trucks? Perhaps the trucks should be made available through sale or lease to the drivers to let them share in the responsibility of repairs and tires, etc., but also in the profits as a separate co-op. More efficiency, more responsibility, means more profit - only the best drivers would dare stay.

7. If extraordinary expenses do occur, such as this recent strike, Lehigh should set up some way in which recovery of the losses can be made available from all sister co-operative members and other dairies who process their excess milk through Lehigh. Of course, this must work two ways, we then should be ready to help if the reverse would occur.

8. Lehigh Valley Co-operative Dairy could join the other dairies in asking the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board and/or the appropriate legislative body to set aside a sum of money over and above the current retail price, perhaps ½ cents per gallon on fluid milk, to be paid by the consumer, but to go directly to milk and milk product advertising, consumer nutritional education, and research for new products. The advertising and research for my truck, tractor, name brand feed, and for everything I've purchased was included in the sale price, so why not milk? This approach would act as a self-help aide to the whole milk industry.

I realize this is a rather lengthy but a most important subject for a great deal of your readers. The cities of Allentown, Lansdale, and Schuylkill Haven have very important stakes in the survival of the Lehigh Valley Co-operative Dairy in both jobs and in the economy of these respective areas. The 800 or so shippers to Lehigh also contribute to their areas' economy and thus create jobs in related industries. A better job must be done at a profit for all or else we will be seeing the last of Lehigh Valley Co-operative Dairy as we know it today.

In speaking out, I don't expect grassy milk, high bacteria, high leucocytes, oxidation, or antibiotics in my milk as retaliation such as has occurred in the "old days".

Sincerely,
Robert Dreisbach, VMD

Field crops still behind schedule

HARRISBURG — Five days were suitable for fieldwork across the state in the week ending August 21, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service. The increased heat and reduced rainfall was welcomed but high humidity continued to plague dry-down of hay and unharvested small grains. Seasonal harvesting of fruits and vegetables continued. Soil moisture levels declined to mostly adequate. The most frequent reports of surplus levels were from southern counties, but those were limited to one fourth of the area's reporters.

At 37 per cent in dough and a slight bit dented, corn continued at five days behind the 48 per cent in dough stage a year ago. One half of the crop was in dough in the south, 35 per cent in central counties and 31 per cent in the north. Each area reported less than five per cent on ensilage corn cut to date. Japanese beetle and stalk borer damage seemed fairly prevalent. Growers continued to view the crop with optimism. Through last week potatoes were 16 per cent dug, the same as last year. The northern counties report 14 per cent dug with central and southern reports at 18 per cent. Some blight, aphid, leaf hopper and Colorado potato beetle problems continue to be reported. Combining of oats was 69 per cent complete. This lags the 94 per cent of last year by ten days. The north was 62 per cent done, central counties were at 71 per cent, while the south at 82 per cent showed the least progress last week. Harvest was hindered by lodging and weedy fields.

With only 12 per cent complete, Fall plowing was four days behind the 18 per cent a year ago. The north had 11 per cent done, central counties were at 12 per cent, while 16 per cent had been done in the south. Hay quality improved slightly last week and was rated as mostly fair. Alfalfa second cut was 82 per cent done with 23 per cent having been cut a third time. A year ago the third cutting stood at 42 per cent. Clo-tim second cutting was 53 per cent done, ten per cent behind a year ago. Although the weather was better to mow hay, the humidity continued to be too high for good curing. Tobacco was about five per cent harvested. This was ten days behind the 18 per cent done a year ago. As with hay, curing is expected to be a problem.

Griest wins tractor driving

Twin Valley FFA Chapter President Howard Griest III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Griest, Honey Brook R1, won the tractor driving contest at the Kutztown Fair.

Other winners in the tractor driving contest were: 2. Ed Sittler, Oley Valley FFA; 3. Ernest Gelsinger, Conrad Weiser FFA; 4. Henry Noss, Conrad Weiser FFA; 5. Bruce Latshaw, Kutztown FFA; 6. Duane Howard, Oley Valley FFA; 7. Tom Kearns, Twin Valley FFA; 8. Dave Dietrich, Kutztown FFA; and 9. Kelvin Reinert, Lehigh County FFA.

The tractor driving contest consists of seven different parts. The contestants must take a written safety test, must find at least ten faults on a tractor, and must demonstrate simple skills. Students must also demonstrate how to perform a safety check on a tractor before starting it. There are then three actual driving tests.

Throughout the contest the students are scored on safety. The top two students from this contest are now eligible to represent Berks County on October 12 in the Berks-Lebanon-Schuylkill County Area FFA Contest. The winner of this contest represents the B-L-S area in the Pennsylvania State FFA Contest next June at Penn State.

'Peachilicious'

weekend Sept. 2-4

GATCHELLVILLE --- "Peach foods, peach crafts, a peachy puppet, peachy fun will complement the U-Pick peaches in the orchard," announces Paul McPherson, manager. "We should have plenty of Elbertas for those who still want to can peaches and Red Skins for the canning and freezing homemakers. Tho the crop was extremely short this year, we should have plenty of these varieties to last the weekend. The later ones: Rio Oso Gerns, Clover-leaf Specials and Marqueens will not be so plentiful. So this will be the last major harvest time of the season stretching into mid-September."

Everything starts with peaches on the Peachilicious Weekend. Pies and desserts all with peachy fillings will be baked by women from Mt. Nebo Methodist Church from peaches picked and delivered by the Youth Group for the second year. Proceeds will go to the building fund to rebuild their church ravaged by fire February, 1977. Eastern Star ladies will man the ice cream sundae stand with peach, vanilla and raspberry to be topped with fresh peaches from the Maple Lawn Farms orchards prepared on the site.

Peachy dogs will round out the menu by the Tom Wallace Family who will be barking their tasty treats for the eighth straight festival. The doggies are charcoal broiled, then simmered in a spicy peach sauce to be served on a bun with the drizzled sauce in place of regular condiments.

Even the craftsmen will adhere to the peach theme with at least one peachy item in their line of wares.

A highlight for the children will be two showings of the puppet show by Carolyn Koerber and Lynda Kidder featuring lifesize puppets at 2 p.m. and 4:30 p.m. in the Apple Barn near the Elberta orchard on the Brown Farm near Gatchellville.

Buses, schools, tour groups are all welcome to the farm three miles north of Fawn Grove, at Gatchellville, Pa. Admission is free.

The soil at the Warren Roelkey farm had been neglected for years and broken equipment was scattered all over the place, including a manure spreader which rested adjacent to the porch of the 1852 farm house. Volunteers cleared the 245 acre farm of debris and beautified it from the front yard to the back woods within a single day.

According to spokesmen with the project, the Roelkey farm was chosen because the conservation practices to be installed were representative of those which are needed on many farms throughout the nation. The undertaking, which was officially dubbed Project Clearwater, was directed to show that soil conservation is important and that these same practices are linked to water quality.

Strong considerations were also given to wildlife habitat and management.

The Maryland organizers of the event explained that Project Clearwater came about as a result of governmental demands for clean streams by 1985. They cite congressional action of 1972 which mandates that the nation's waters should be fishable and swimmable by 1985. Also, due to a similar project having taken place near here 30 years ago, there was considerable interest and enthusiasm within the District to stage another highly publicized field day.

"THE DIESEL WITH A DIFFERENCE"

Cuts your power costs because it's way ahead of its time on all points.

AVCO-VM diesel engines are world-proven money-savers. They deliver maximum power efficiency immediately, under any sudden load or climate variation. Their higher power to weight ratios mean NO REDUCTION IN HORSEPOWER to qualify for pollution standards.

They're stingy on fuel, too. Many users report fuel consumption CUT IN HALF — and more — compared with gasoline engines. In some installations, our diesels are delivering more than TWICE the hours of operation per gallon of fuel.

Faultless performance is the norm, rather than the exception. A choice of 27 premium quality air-cooled Avco-VM's (5 to 670-hp) means there's one that's right for your application.

Modular, unitized construction means fewer specialized parts, lower weight per hp, lower maintenance costs, 70% parts interchangeability — and they'll fit the tightest space.

UNIVERSITY PARK — When results were finalized for the recent Pennsylvania 4-H Achievement Days, a statewide series of contests for 4-H Club members from all over the state, it was noted that 100 per cent of the competition was won by participants from the Capitol Region. That area encompasses eight counties, those being Adams, Cumberland, York, Dauphin, Lancaster, Franklin, Lebanon and Perry.

Lancaster and York Counties did particularly well in the contests, as was noted in both last and this week's issue of Lancaster Farming. Due to a strike that was going on at Penn State University while the contests were being held, complete results were not available at presstime a week ago. Although an overall view of Lancaster 4-H's achievements appeared in a front-page article two weeks ago, results

The event was organized by James Glass, who is president of the Northeast Chianina Association. He has been in charge of the field day for the past three years.

Judge for the day was Knic Overpeck, from Clinton, Ind.

YOUR TRACTOR DEALER.

You keep milk production up and feed costs down with our dairy pre-mixes.

Wouldn't you like to put some of that money you spend on commercial protein supplements in your own pocket?

That's the goal behind an alfalfa, grain and Vigortone Dairy Pre-Mix feeding program. It helps you take maximum advantage of the protein and energy already in your home-grown feedstuffs.

And legume roughage is a good source of protein; but it's low in phosphorus and other nutrients so important to the needs of all dairy cows.

That's where Vigortone Dairy Pre-Mixes help. These potent pre-mixes are specially formulated for the feeds grown on your farm and contain the proper amount of phosphorus to balance the calcium content of your legume roughages.

Vigortone Dairy Pre-Mixes also furnish the minerals, vitamins and other nutrients so important to good nutrition and better milk production. Special ingredients promote proper digestion and assimilation of rations, so your cows benefit more from less feed.

Your Vigortone Dealer can help you figure the energy and protein supplied by your own grain and roughage. You'll know from the start how much, if any, additional protein you'll need.

Now is the time to compare.

See your Vigortone Dealer soon. He's ready to compare the performance of Vigortone's cost-saving dairy feeding programs with any other you name.

Pat and Howard Smith, Greenfields Farm of Landenberg will be consigning three-fourths interest and full possession in "Duke" A661, a bull they purchased from Jerry Litton.

Charolais sale dedicated to Litton

MERCER—Jerry Litton a former Missouri congressman and dynamic agricultural leader who lost his life along with his wife and two children in a plane crash two years ago, will be remembered here on Sept. 9 when a group of Charolais breeders dedicate a sale of LCR bloodline cattle to their past effort. Jerry and his father Charlie established the Litton Charolais Ranch, LCR, line of Charolais on performance and carcass traits based on a bull called "Sam" (FWT Bar 951). Their cattle were at the top in performance over all breeds in independent and college research units and through PRI (Performance Registry International) - the all-breeds performance evaluation program.

At a program on Friday evening, Sept. 8, prior to the sale, Dan Schoenfelder, part owner and business manager of the present Litton Ranch will present a slide program on how LCR became a legend in out time in the purebred beef cattle business.

Great Oaks Farm, owned by Dave and Ernie Simpson and Silver Wings Farm, owned by Carolyn and Wilson Legg of Gettysburg, and Pat and Howard Smith of Greenfields Farm, Landenberg were part of the group of 10 breeders that initiated the memorial sale to provide a living memory to the Littons. Great Oaks and Greenfields will offer partial interests in their polled LCR herdsires - "283"

garbage at a rolling boil (212 degrees F.) for thirty minutes to kill disease-causing virus and bacteria. Cooking garbage is particularly important with ASF so close to the United States.

The outbreak of the ASF in Brazil and the Dominican Republic has spread rapidly. The strain of the virus which is active is a new milder strain which some officials feel could be even more dangerous than the type which can kill 100 per cent of affected swine within a week. The disease could enter the country and spread unchecked before it kills enough swine to make itself known.

The only other infestation of ASF in the western hemisphere occurred in Cuba in 1971 and resulted in the loss of over one-third of that country's swine before it was eradicated.

Shelhamer noted the importance of cooking and surveillance to keep ASF and other diseases out of the country. The amount of traffic among the Caribbean Islands, and the United States is tremendous, according to USDA sources. "All it could take is literally one sausage infected with ASF virus to find its way into one garbage feeding farm to kickoff a lethal outbreak," he said.

The Department is urging proper cooking of all garbage containing meat scraps and thoroughly agitating the garbage during cooking. In addition, swine producers should practice strict disease control measures. "Don't let visitors in your hog pens or on your farm," he noted. "The ASF virus can travel on clothing, equipment, and vehicles." Inspect your animals every day for signs of disease. Suspicious conditions should be reported to a veterinarian. Symptoms to look for include: high fever, red blotches on the skin, weakness, a tendency to huddle together, higher than usual death losses. ASF appears very similar in symptoms to hog cholera. Remind other garbage feeders to cook garbage thoroughly. ASF does not respect property lines. If one herd is infected, surrounding herds will be exposed.

BAR-LOK

The Advantages of Speedy Corn Crib

1. Easy to Erect

Speedy's Corn Crib goes up fast and easy because of roof rafters and Bar-Lok side panels. The steeply pitched roof pushes the corn to the edges—NO WASTED SPACE!

Step 1 — Bar-Lok Construction saves you time — gives you a strong, sturdy crib. Crib wire panels are interlaced to form an eye. A 13"x3/8" rod is then inserted through the eye and pushed down to the foundation. Easy, simple, fast construction.

Step 2 — Rafters are bolted to assembled rafter ring. Now you're ready to put the roof panels on. Rafters assure you of proper roof panel placement the first time. No wooden framework to build.

2. Wide Selection

There is a Speedy Crib for every farm need, priced right for every budget.

- Choice of 900, 1200 or 1700 Bushel Sizes.
- 5 or 2 Gauge Wire Mesh Side Panels.

3. Durable

The Speedy 5 Gauge Crib won't bulge or sag—stands straight and tall year after year. For extra strength and durability get the Speedy 2 Gauge Crib—outlasts other cribs—even with full capacity loads. Galvanized wire, not aluminum paint.

4. Save Money and Energy

Corn stored in a Speedy Crib is dried by Mother Nature without the use of costly energy. This saves money and also helps conserve our scarce energy resources.

Senate acts on foreign farmland owners

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Legislation that would require full public disclosure of foreign ownership of U.S. farmland was approved recently by the Senate Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry.

Senator Herman E. Talmadge of Georgia, committee chairman and a sponsor of the bill, said the legislation is an "interim step" in his committee's current, broad-based study of the extent and impact of foreign ownership of American farmland.

The bill would require all foreign investors — individuals, corporate and government — to submit a full and complete report to the Secretary of Agriculture of all existing ownership and future purchases of U.S. agricultural land — including cropland, rangeland and timberland.

At Talmadge's request, the General Accounting Office (GAO) conducted a preliminary study of foreign farmland ownership earlier this year. That study confirmed extensive land purchases by foreigners in some areas of the country, but cited a lack of reliable information and a system for obtaining such data for its inconclusive and tentative findings.

The bill approved by the Committee is designed to provide the machinery to obtain the lacking information. It would establish within the Department of Agriculture a new system for registering and reporting foreign ownership of agricultural lands. Foreign owners would be required to report within 180 days of the effective date of the proposed law (October 1, 1978) all existing land holdings, location and size of the holdings, purchase price and full identity of the owner or owners. The same information would be required within 30 days of future farmland purchases by foreigners.

In addition to outright land ownership, the bill would apply to options and contracts to purchase land and land leases of five years or longer.

The bill would require periodic assessments by the Secretary of Agriculture of trends in foreign farmland ownership and the effects on the American agricultural system, the Nation's economy, and relations with other countries. An initial report would be made to the President and Congress within ten months after effective date of the law and annually thereafter.

Foreign investors who violate reporting requirements would be subject to penalties of up to one-fourth of the fair market value of their land.

The bill would have an initial life of three years, expiring on September 30, 1981 unless extended by Congress.

Livestock dealer suspended

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Willard C. Dinger, a livestock dealer and former operator of Showalter's Livestock Exchange at Duncansville, Pa., has been suspended by the U.S. Department of Agriculture for 90 days for violating financial and payment requirements of the Packers and Stockyards (P&S) Act. He has also been placed under a cease and desist order. USDA packers and stockyards officials said that Dinger is not operating at this time.

Dinger is registered with USDA as a market agency and dealer to buy and sell livestock. He formerly purchased livestock in the Altoona area of Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, and West Virginia. Administrative Law Judge Dorothea A. Baker suspended Dinger's registration for 90 days, starting July 27.

Judge Baker also ordered Dinger to cease and desist from issuing insufficient funds checks or drafts in payment for livestock; and failing to pay, when due, the full purchase price of livestock.

The cease and desist order, like a permanent injunction, was issued to insure Mr. Dinger's future compliance with the P&S Act. He consented to the order and waived oral hearing. He neither admitted nor denied the USDA charges filed against him.

Dealers and market agencies are required under the P&S Act to pay promptly for livestock, unless credit has been arranged in advance.

The U.S. Department of Transportation's Federal Railroad Administration predicts that 14.8 million people will ride the upgraded Northeast Railroad Corridor when the project is complete around 1981. This is an increase of 53 per cent over the 1977 ridership along the corridor.

Kim Sheaffer's hog named 4-H champion

CARLISLE — The County Butcher Shop of Plainfield paid a county record price of $3.50 a pound for the grand champion market hog shown by Kim Sheaffer of Carlisle R5, at the 1978 Cumberland County 4-H Pig Roundup and Sale. The event was held at the Carlisle Livestock Market on August 22.

Kim Sheaffer, the 8-year old daughter of Mr. & Mrs. Thomas Sheaffer of Carlisle R5, and a first year 4-H member, won the championship honor with her 235 pound Duroc-cross gilt. It also gained for her the title of champion fitter of the roundup.

The reserve champion, a 245 lb. Duroc exhibited by Tim Kutz of Carlisle R4, sold to Hatfield Packing Company of Hatfield, for $1.70 a pound. Hatfield was the leading buyer at the sale purchasing a total of 32 hogs.

The champion trio shown by Jenny Fenicle of Carlisle R8, was sold to Pennsylvania Packing Company of Philadelphia. Pennpack also purchased the champion pair which was exhibited by Chris Hopple of Mechanicsburg R2, and by the end of the sale had successfully bid on 16 more hogs.

In addition to the Champion, The Country Butcher Shop purchased nine hogs, J.C. Eberts & Son of Carlisle bought 12, and other successful bidders were Knisely's Agricultural Center, Carlisle; Potties Furniture Store, Newville; John Stamy, Newville; and Richard Zimmerman of Plainfield.

The 93 4-H project hogs sold at an average weight of 219 pounds for an overall average price of $65.44 cents per pound. Without the champion the average price was $62.12 cents per pound.

ENVIRONMENTAL CONTROL FOR POULTRY & LIVESTOCK BUILDINGS

INLET POWER PACK

AIR INLETS

AIR SYSTEM CONTROL

Four basic components go into the makeup of this ventilation system...the fan, the inlet, the air inlet power pack, and the controls. Coordinated, these four basic components can provide you with better conversion and performance by removing stresses due to lack of oxygen, excess humidity, noxious gases and temperature extremes.

Reliability through simplicity, Chore-Time's advanced air system provides automatic control of incoming fresh air, moisture and heat for productive environmental control in agricultural buildings.

AUTOMATIC HOOD FAN

The hot Summer sun assured a steady flow of visitors to refreshments stands.

The idea mushroomed quickly. Groups of people, as well as individuals and numerous businesses were eager to donate time and equipment. On August 19 the entire Roelkey farm turned into a beehive of activity which many visitors described as just plain fantastic.

Bulldozers roared into action to build a pond. Men and boys with tanned arms hammered a new hog barn together. Others painted and built fences. Tons of debris which had littered the farm were removed and buried. Pastureland was renovated, complete with concrete watering facilities for livestock and acres of woodland were cleaned to mark the beginning of forest management.

Spokesmen at the scene explained that the Project was "agriculture's positive response to Congress' mandate to clean up rivers and streams. It was pointed out that two small streams go through the Roelkey property and empty into the nearby Potomac River, which eventually winds up in Washington, D.C.

Because of the massive scale of the event and the profound implications, the activities were widely publicized well in advance as well as during the field day. Numerous representatives from radio, television, newspapers and magazines were on hand to observe, scribble notes and take pictures. Helicopters were available for aerial photography.

The thrust of the activities were obviously aimed to urban and suburban people, as well as agriculturalists. There was something for everyone. And while most of it was a positive learning experience, there were a number of areas which raised questions and left doubt. Typical of such an experience was the stream which was supposed to allow cows to drink while keeping pollution out. Many farmers weren't convinced it would work. Also, variations of such watering areas could possibly allow water to lay in pools and become stagnant.

Nonetheless, the happenings at the Warren Roelkey farm were regarded as impressive and worthwhile. In upcoming weeks Lancaster Farming will present more detailed reports on the work which took place to completely renovate a farm which had previously been in a pitiful state of neglect.

Lanc. 4-H queens

In the Junior Queen contest, Gretchen Doner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Doner, New Providence R2, was named winner. Gretchen represented the Rough Riders 4-H Club, and said she was very "happy and surprised." Lisa King, 1977 Junior Queen crowned her successor.

Named First Alternate in the Senior Queen contest was Carol Stinson, representing the Rough Riders 4-H Club. Carol is the daughter of The Rev. and Mrs. Melvin Stinson, Strasburg R1.

Jenny Stauffer, presenting the Lititz-Manheim Swift Stitches 4-H Club was named first Alternate Junior 4-H Queen. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Stauffer, 237 Landis Valley Road, Lancaster.

In an onstage interview by Mistress of Ceremonies Roxanne Stein, WGAL-TV News, Suzy was asked to tell how she would explain 4-H to someone else. She said, "I would tell them it is a great organization, and how it has helped me grow. It helped me gain experience in many areas and meet new people and make many new friends. It's made me a better person and helps me strive for the important things."

Gretchen was asked what she enjoyed most about 4-H, and she responded by saying she liked helping others through a project her club has which teaches handicapped children to ride horses.

Other contestants in the junior contest were: Gayle Weaver, Brickerville Community 4-H Club; Michelle Dean, Red Rose Beef and Sheep Club; and Edith Yoder, Pequea Valley 4-H Cooking and Sewing Club. In the senior division, contestants were: Cindy Risser, Manheim Township Community 4-H Club; Bev Buckwalter, Elm-Penryn Community 4-H Club; and Judy Zimmerman, Red Rose Beef and Sheep 4-H Club.

Hal Enders, 3203 Horizon Drive, Lancaster, took first place in the talent contest with his presentation on the drum set. The very talented Enders is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Enders, and has been playing the drums for five years. He received a $25.00 award. Enders also received recognition in the national awards program for his dog care project.

Second place in the talent contest went to Connie and Carol Balmer, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Balmer, 592 Millway Road Lititz, who played a trumpet duet. Yvonne Eshleman, Lancaster R2, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Eshleman, captured third place with a piano solo. Second place winners received $15.00 and third place $10.00.

Others in the talent contest included Joyce and Jeff Wagner, Supatra Sritulanondha, John Charles, Ann Lusk, Delinda Tindall, Teri Spohn and Cindy Risser. Cherri Gochbauer served as mistress of ceremonies for that portion.

Raymond Baxter, vice president of the Lancaster County Bankers Association presented the annual Bankers Association scholarships, totalling $800, to the following: Sue Baker, Stuart Heiser, Martha Gregory, Amy Katz, June-Grube, Phil Risser, Carol Stinson, Jay Stauffer, Connie Bensinger and Betsy Best. Baxter, who is vice president for lending for Blue Ball National Bank, said the program of providing scholarships to young people, which amounts to over $2,000 annually, is something the bankers "enjoy sponsoring more than anything."

County Agent Max Smith presented the awards for achievement day winners in the following categories: Start Sticking - 1. Danita Stoltzfus, Manheim; 2. Melanie Shenk, Elm-Penryn; 3. Wendy Martin, Ephrata.

Stitch An Outfit: 1. Carla Martin, Garden Spot; 2. Betsy Martin, Garden Spot; 3. Dawn Martin, Pequea Valley.

Manheim Township Community Club claimed all three winners in the Create A Skirt category. They were: 1. Joy Ann Sensesig; 2. Maria Witmer; and 3. Dawn Stoltzfus.

In the Junior Foods division, in the Salad

Hamsters, gerbils, goldfish and parakeets - all in a day's work

SILVER SPRING — If you think feeding your family's pets is a problem, consider feeding 12,000 hamsters, or perhaps 2,000 gerbils. That's just a few of the many animals which are fed twice daily at Nolt's Ponds, Inc. near Silver Spring in Lancaster County.

Nolt's Ponds is one of the largest producers of pet animals in the United States, and in addition to hamsters and gerbils, they also produce white mice, guinea pigs and parakeets. They also have a large fish business, handling both goldfish and tropical fish. In fact, goldfish were the foundation of what is now a thriving pet supply enterprise.

"We want to have pets which people can enjoy and which are safe to have around the home. We want them to have the pets and to keep them safely," says A. Frank Huber, Jr., president of Nolt's Ponds, describing their attitude about raising small animals.

Nolt's Ponds is in its fiftieth year of business, and 10 years ago Huber took over the business from his father-in-law, Lloyd W. Nolt. The venture began in the basement of Nolt's farmhouse on Silver Spring Road. Nolt kept goldfish and water lilies as a hobby, but he also sold them to people who had lawn ponds. His small hobby-type enterprise became more well-known through a quirk of fate.

When he discovered some dead goldfish in his pond he called in the county Extension agent for advice. When the water was tested, the agent returned with four state policemen who wanted to know where the still was. It seems that discharge from a still caused the death of the fish. Nolt, of course, had no still, but the policemen traced the source of the problem to a still which had been established nearby. When the story hit the newspapers, Nolt's fish became famous and he received more and more calls from potential customers.

As business expanded, the fish moved from the basement to a garage to a converted tobacco shed which eventually required an addition. "We were in barns all over the place," Huber said. Now the business is located in a modern building with 50,000 square feet of space. The animal breeding operation continues to operate out of the converted tobacco barn. The firm now employs 67 people, and distributes wholesale almost every item needed for pets. Orders are computerized on a "Mini-Computer" which Huber says they've had for about three years.

Nolt's Ponds sells directly to 1100 customers from Cleveland to the east coast and from Watertown, N.Y. to Fredericksburg, Va. However, they also supply distributors around the country, so their animals can be found nearly everywhere in the United States.

Transporting animals, and fish, requires special handling at all points. The major goldfish breeding areas in this country are in the Catocin Mountain area in Virginia, with its abundance of fresh water, and in the Ozarks in the Missouri. Tropical fish are imported from South America, Hong Kong and Singapore and Florida. Three times a week Nolt's Ponds takes shipment of these fish at the Philadelphia National Airport. Huber said, "Our biggest problems is in the way they are handled, in getting them from the fish farms to customers." Temperature is critical to tropical fish, and Nolt's Ponds trucks are heated to keep a constant, desirable temperature. Huber noted, however, that there is little control over shipments which might not be taken inside promptly at the airport terminal. "Sometimes they are chilled or overheated while being transported."

As soon as fish arrive at the Silver Spring location, they are given preventative medicines and held in isolation for 72 hours to make sure they will be healthy when they are distributed further.

Nolt's Ponds began their business with goldfish as a hobby. Now their fish sales include both goldfish and tropical fish varieties. Here Frank Huber scoops out some of the fish, which are kept in many tanks.

care of her father's business for "two or three years" before Huber took it over, so she had much practical experience. They also call in consultants from universities when needed. "We are hoping to set up our own microbiology department so we can be a little more sophisticated in handling the fish," Huber said.

In the United States there are about 45 active pet supply distributors who have joined together in the Pet Industry Distributors Association, and Huber has allows the attendants to check the progress of the hundreds of pregnancies in progress. It was an experience for this writer to see day-old hamsters, which are incredibly small!!

There is real breeding selection at Nolt's Ponds. Huber explains, "If we have an animal which does not give birth at an above average rate, we get rid of it. We also get rid of cannibalistic animals. We feel we have good, docile animals."

Huber noted, "There is an increasing market for pets. People have more spare time and can devote more of this time to a hobby. They are educational for young people and relaxing for people of any age."

"Having a small pet can be an inexpensive hobby. You can bring an aquarium home very cheaply." He makes another interesting point, "We find when the economy slows up, business is good because people will spend more for their hobbies."

When asked if advertising is necessary, Huber replied, "We do very little advertising. We've built our business on our reputation." He acknowledged that advertising by name brand manufacturers is helpful to his wholesale business.

One reason for the decision to enter the breeding aspect of the industry, Huber said, was to have "better control over the quality of animals. People who breed animals are the mercy of the market and this is one of the biggest drawbacks for the breeders. We are in a unique position because we can regulate what we need to supply our 1100 customers. We have standing orders for some things."

Parakeets are a relatively new venture at Nolt's Ponds, but Huber said they decided to breed their own because "importation is becoming so complicated with government regulations." He speculates that it will become increasingly difficult to import the birds. To get into the business they bought out and moved a "good strain of breeder birds." With parakeets, Huber said, "space is a big problem. It's hard to house them properly."

Summer is the slack period in the small pet trade, Huber notes, with September through June being the busier time. January through May are the highest periods of selling, which Huber attributed to the need to be confined indoors. "The weather is not as good and people turn to their pets."

Of course, Huber makes it sound easy, but as he tours the facilities and talks about the animals, it quickly becomes apparent that there are great intricacies in scheduling the gestation periods and rest periods and knowing what to expect from each kind of animal. His "learning by doing" has obviously paid off.

The atmosphere at Nolt's ponds is one of efficiency and caring. They are a unique agricultural industry serving a specific and special need.

HOMESTEAD NOTES

By SALLY BAIR
Staff Writer

Water in the aquariums at Nolt's Ponds is cared for in an enclosed filter system, which recirculates the water and keeps it free of harmful bacteria. "We have excellent disease control," Huber noted proudly.

Huber, a native of Lancaster, has a degree in electronics. When asked how he learned about caring for the fish and other animals, he said, "I learned by doing - I did everything." His wife Mary had taken been president of that for the past two years. He said, "We are the fourth largest pet supply distributor in the United States." The Association helps keep members abreast of legislation which is of concern to them, and helps set standards within the industry.

About five years ago, Huber decided to breed their own small animals. As a result, he said, "We are the second or third largest animal producer in this country." It is small wonder when you consider that they raise about 5,000 hamsters weekly, from 1,500 to 2,000 gerbils, 500 guinea pigs and 2,000 to 3,000 white mice. Parakeets, the newest addition to their inventory, average between 150 to 200 a week.

The animals are bred and raised until time for shipment in the tobacco barn on the original Nolt farm. Adaptations and additions have been made as necessary to house the animals. Huber recalls that they first began raising the small animals in potato chip cans, but presently that did not meet the requirements of the United States Department of Agriculture inspectors, so all the animals are housed and fed in plastic boxes which resemble dishpans with lids. It's quite a sight to enter a room filled with row after row of plastic boxes neatly held on racks four or five high. Each small plastic home is completely cleaned and steam washed at a temperature of 180 degrees F. once a week. Huber noted that even without the frequent inspections by USDA, on the average of every three weeks, they would want to keep the animals and the building as clean as possible to maintain optimum production.

The small creatures require a lot of attention, and they get it at Nolt's. They are fed twice daily and watered, and this

As part of his daily tasks, Frank Huber checks some of the hamsters which are bred and raised. Later they will be distributed to some of the many pet supply stores.

Farm Women Societies

Berks Co. Society 6

Berks County Farm Women Society 6 held their meeting on August 15, at the home of Mrs. Mary Hess, Stony Creek Mills. Bob Angstadt from PAR was the guest speaker for the evening.

The covered dish lunch and swimming at the home of Mrs. Nora Sweitzer, Oley, was rescheduled for Monday, August 21.

Plans were made to attend entertainment nite by Society 10 October 16 at Hamburg Center.

A donation was given to PAR and also to an accident victim from the local area.

The date for the County Convention is October 7, at the Ag Center.

The next meeting will be September 19 at the home of Mrs. Merrill Hetrick, Oley.

Berks Co. Society 9

On August 9, the Berks County Farm Women Society 9 met at the home of Mrs. Sue Hendricks in Amityville. Ten members were present to work on mane tags and items for the silent auction table to be at the convention in October.

On October 16, Society 10 is having an entertainment night in Hamburg.

On September 6, the group's next meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Winnie Hayik, Weavertown. Subject for the evening will be the care of houseplants.

Lancaster Co. Society 18

Twenty-three members of Lancaster County Farm Women Society 18 held their annual food auction at the home of Judy Miller August 19.

During the business meeting members voted to donate $25 to the Welsh Mountain Clinic for the County Project. Plans were made to entertain the residents of Conestoga View in co-operation with Society 17 in September.

The First, Presbyterian Church of Strasburg will be the site of the September meeting. Igerna Wanner will be the hostess.

Lancaster Co. Society 22

Lancaster County Farm Women Society 22 held their August meeting at Ruhl's Picnic Grove; entertained were guests and some staff members from The Danner Home in Manheim. The Danner Home is Society 2's yearly project.

A covered dish luncheon was served to ladies from the Danner Home and the husbands of Society 2 members.

Vice-president Martha Brandt held a short business meeting during which the antique sale of Fry's in Lititz was discussed; also the upcoming sale of Ronald and Pauline Gordley.

Games were played, all the cakes won during cake walks were presented to guests from the Danner Home.

Next meeting will be held at the home of Elizabeth Shank, Martha Brandt will serve as co-hostess.

President of Society 2 Grace Miller entertained at a farewell ice-cream party members of Society 2. The party was held honoring Ronald and Pauline Gordley who will move to Florida. Pauline has been a member of Society 2 for 28 years. Also in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. Paul Donough from Chambersburg and Mr. and Mrs. John Dourte from Florida.

On October 17, ladies will sew at the Lancaster Osteopathic Hospital.

Lebanon Co. Society 5

The August meeting of The Lebanon County Farm Women Society 5 was held at the K and B Bowling Lanes, Palmyra. Later, all those present moved next door to the "Nancy Lou" for a short business meeting and a treat.

President Minerva Lentz conducted the business meeting. It was announced that history books are for sale for $1.50.

The Fall Convention will be on October 11 at the Annville Brethren Church, with tickets selling at $4.50.

Lebanon Co. Society 14

The home of Mrs. Jerry Yeager was the setting for the monthly meeting of Lebanon County Farm Women Society 14. Co-hostess was Mrs. Walter Dice.

President Mrs. George Ungemach had the business meeting. Fifteen members answered roll call. Plans were discussed for the charity bazaar, to be September 8 and 9 at the Lebanon Plaza. Also discussed was the County Convention on October 11.

The program for the evening was on safety-a quiz on safety rules. Prizes were won by Mrs. Muriel Kegerreis and Mrs. Roy Alger.

The next meeting will be on September 19 at the home of Mrs. David Gish, Palmyra R2, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

York Co. Society 2

York County Farm Women Society 2 met recently at the home of Leafa Klineyoung with 25 members in attendance.

Marcel Seckman, extension home economist, spoke on the metric system following a patio luncheon served to the guests. A silent auction was included during the afternoon program.

Future activities include a bus trip to Lancaster County during October, attendance at the dinner theatre at Wisehaven, and a Christmas party to be held at the Rutter's Restaurant in Red Lion.

The September meeting will feature a safety program.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

These are busy August days for most everyone I'm sure. But in our area we've had more than our share of rain and so not only are the garden crops abundant but so are the weeds. It's been too wet to hoe and so I've been doing loads of hand weeding.

When I get an extra basket of beans, I try to sell them. In this way I learn of the eating habits of other people. Some tell me that they cook them three hours before eating them—I always thought ten or fifteen minutes was best. Others say, "No beans thank you, we don't eat any hot meals in the summer." Really, I can't imagine a day without big, hot, cooked meals. But then my menfolk work very hard.

At present they have just finished tearing down an old shed which now appears to have been the original barn on this Weidler farm. They found harness pegs in the lower section and took up 2" wooden pegged floor boards. The planks are vertically sawed too. With this type of extra work, plus caring for the many dairy animals, they need good food for fuel.

In order to tear down the building the calves and heifers had to be moved. Naturally, the heifers managed to get out of the electric fence and into the garden and yard. As long as this happens in the daytime and not at night when they could eat all the sweetcorn, I shouldn't complain.

Now if I get the peaches canned and Cindy taken back and forth to Band Camp for a week, I guess I'll survive August. The question is—will her feet survive all those hours of marching and drilling?

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration estimates the number of motorcyclists injured annually at more than 350,000.

On being a farm wife —And other hazards

By JOYCE BUPP

Dear Cow (or steer, pig, sheep, horse, etc.):
Yes, it's true. Show time is here again.

And you've become star-struck with proud visions of parading around a ring with a grand champion rosette or a shiny silver trophy. In your dreams, scores of admirers cluster near your stall and dicker for a chance at owning you.

Being a beauty symbol means hard work in a hot and dusty show ring, long hours of enduring tickling clippers at your ears, soap in your eyes and a cold hose aimed at a tender flank. Are you ready for the poking fingers and prying eyes of a professional judge scrutinizing your physical attributes?

If, after a careful self-examination, you still aim at the fame of a winner's career, learning a few simple rules will provide you an immediate success with your peers on the tanbark circuit.

Devote every hour to becoming the dirtiest, most mud-caked being in the barnyard. A full-length cover of grit will assure you of receiving the hours of undivided attention deserved by a star. You'll be treated to soothing back scratches with a currycomb and dainty manicures beneath a mallet and chisel.

Jogging is great for maintaining your figure. It can be done in the safety of the home pasture, but is much more enjoyable performed at the exhibit area. Practice making a quick getaway as they unload you from the truck. This will guarantee you an audience - and what's a star without an audience, anyway?

Kicking your heels high into the air adds flair to the jogging display, as does the ability to turn on a dime, thus escaping any would-be catcher who has gotten to within six inches of grabbing your halter.

Practice swatting at flies until you have developed deadly aim with your tail. You will be assured of smacking the groomer directly in the eyes after he has soaked and lathered your tail during the bathing process.

Learn a few simple dance routines to expand your talent - nothing fancy, of course. Basic foot movements will help you land a foot square in the middle of the bucket of fresh, cold drinking water. Be sure that the contents then spill throughout the shiny dry straw carpeting your pen.

Demonstrate your appreciation of being fed. Greet the person delivering your dinner with a powerful shove into the corner.

Bellow loudly and frequently throughout the night before the show. If you can't sleep from nervousness, why should anyone else?

Keep the showman awake and alert throughout the judging. Step on his foot from time to time.

Remember at all times that a star is temperamental: fight the halter, step in a manure pile on the way to the show ring, throw hay at your stallmate and kick at the judge.

Master all the above techniques, and you'll be ready to head out on the exhibition tour with some reluctant farm wife.

Insincerely yours,
Black and blue,
You know who...

NEW GOURMET CANNING IDEA

If you are planning to take advantage of the fresh fruit season with a favorite home canning recipe, why not try a slightly exotic change of pace - chutney. Pear or peach chutney is a delicious diversion with chicken, cold meats and curries.

inch head space. Adjust caps. Process 10 minutes in boiling water bath. Yield: about 7 pints. Note: for a milder chutney, remove seed from hot pepper. Use rubber gloves to prevent burning hands.

HOW TO PERFORM SOME BLOUSON MAGIC

Chutneys are a wonderful idea we picked up from India in the 18th century. The word comes from Hindu and the condiment comes to us from the tables of the princes and potentates of India, who regarded chutney as the aristocrat of condiments. Though we Westerners are willing to bestow the chutney name on almost any acid fruit mixture with raisins, onions, and spices, the Indians see mango as a primary ingredient in the dish. No mango, no chutney. They also insist on preparing their chutney fresh for each meal.

Cultures vary, and what we share with each other we often adapt to suit our own tastes and needs. Here then is a delicious can-ahead update for chutney.

PEAR OR PEACH CHUTNEY

4 quarts finely chopped, peeled peaches or pears
1 cup seedless raisins
1 cup chopped onions
2 to 3 cups brown sugar
¼ cup mustard seed
2 tablespoons ground ginger
2 teaspoons salt
1 clove garlic, minced
1 hot red pepper
5 cups vinegar

Combine all ingredients and cook slowly until thick, about 40 minutes. Stir frequently to prevent sticking. Pour, boiling hot, into hot pint jars, leaving ¼

If you can sew, you can turn some of your last fall's wardrobe into this year's blousons with hardly any expenditure of time! As you take stock of your old clothes before they go into the discard pile, think blouson. This applies to blouses, shirts, dresses and even some jumpers. If your bustline is ample, the blouson will work well for you in soft fabrics.

Here are directions to help you perform blouson magic in your sewing room. Try the garment on. Tie a tape measure or string around your waist. Measure 6" below the tape and place a pin in your garment. Take it off, and cut off the extra fabric below the pin. Be sure you measure the same amount all the way around the garment. Make a casing at cut edge of garment. Press cut edge under ¼". Next press up turned edge ½" and pin in place. Machine-stitch the casing along the inside fold, leaving an opening of one inch. Measure a piece of ¼" elastic the length of your waistline. Draw the elastic through the opening and the casing with a safety pin. Machine-stitch the ends of elastic together. Slip-stitch the opening closed, and admire your new creation.

CUTTER

The cost of diesel fuel has jumped nearly 100 percent since October, 1973 and it's still about three cents a gallon cheaper than gasoline. Higher fuel costs call for a closer look at total operating costs when you buy engines. Deutz air-cooled engines use 20 to 40 percent less fuel than most water-cooled diesel engines - far less than gasoline engines. And they are competitively priced. So hadn't you better buy or specify the cost cutter - Deutz? 10 to 500 bhp.

Today there are more competitive brands of air cooled diesels on the market than ever before — yet we doubled our sales in the last two years — which says it all about public acceptance of Deutz diesels.

Home on the Range

Recipe variety offers something for everyone

As August draws to a close, we round out the month with a last list of recipes that were just too good to be kept waiting in the files. This week we've included snapper soup, mock turkey, brown Betty pudding, butterscotch chocolate cake, tasty 'n tender round steak, jambalaya, apple punch, fruit punch, country fried pork chops, Hungarian goulash, and Dino's chicken chow mein. All deserve to be tried in your kitchen.

Next week we will be starting the recipe theme calendar again, so be sure to get your recipes in. Today is the last day for you to send your peach recipes, if you want to be sure to have them included.

Send your recipes to: Home on the Range, Lancaster Farming, Box 366, Lititz, Pa. 17543.

SNAPPER SOUP

3 pounds snapper meat
½ cup butter
2 medium onions, minced
¼ cup flour
1 cup canned tomatoes
½ garlic clove, minced few sprigs parsley
6 whole cloves
¼ teaspoon ground mace
1 teaspoon granulated sugar juice of one lemon
½ cup sherry

Cut turtle meat into one inch cubes. Put meat with water in kettle and bring to boil, simmer for 10 minutes. Strain, reserving broth. Melt three tablespoons of the butter in kettle. Add turtle meat and brown on all sides. Remove meat and add remaining butter to kettle. Add tomatoes and brown lightly. Add flour and stir until browned. Add turtle meat and next eight ingredients. Add enough water to broth to make four quarts and add to mixture in kettle. Bring to boil, cover and simmer for three hours. Add sherry and reheat. Serve.

MOCK TURKEY

2 pounds hamburger browned in butter salt and pepper to taste
2 cans cream of chicken soup
1 can celery soup
4 cups milk
1 large package bread stuffing (or 1 loaf)

Mix together and place in pan. Bake at 350°F. for 45 minutes. The cook recommends that the recipe be put in two casseroles, and she freezes one and serves the other.

Annville, Pa.

BROWN BETTY PUDDING

4 cups sliced apple
¾ cup brown sugar
2 cups bread, cut in cubes
2 teaspoons butter little cinnamon
¾ cup hot water

Slice the pared apples very fine. Brush a pudding pan with butter, place a layer of apple on the bottom, then place a layer of bread cubes and half the sugar. Add another layer of apples, then the rest of the bread, next the remaining apples. Cover with the rest of the sugar, sprinkle with cinnamon. Add ¾ cup hot water, cover the pan and bake in a moderate oven, 350°F. for 30 minutes or more. Remove cover and brown. Serve with lemon sauce.

LEMON SAUCE

3 tablespoons granulated sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 tablespoon lemon juice little salt
1 teaspoon butter
1 cup boiling water

Combine the sugar, salt, and cornstarch and mix thoroughly. Slowly add the water and cook in double boiler until mixture thickens. Add the butter and stir until melted. Stir in the lemon juice.

BUTTERSCOTCH CHOCOLATE CAKE

½ cup butter
1 cup granulated sugar
2 eggs
1 cup buttermilk
¼ cup water
1 teaspoon vanilla
1¾ cup flour
1½ teaspoons baking soda
¾ teaspoon salt
2 squares melted unsweetened chocolate

Preheat oven to 350°F. Grease and flour a 13x9x2 inch pan. Combine butter, sugars, eggs, vanilla, and cooled chocolate. Beat for about five minutes with electric beater on high or until fluffy. Sift flour, baking soda, and salt. Add one-fourth of the dry ingredient mixture to the creamed mixture then add one-third of the buttermilk, then one-fourth of the dry ingredient mixture, etc. Add water and blend thoroughly. Pour into the pan and bake 35 to 40 minutes. Remove from pan after cooling for 10 minutes. While cooling, prepare butterscotch filling.

BUTTERSCOTCH FILLING

1 cup brown sugar (packed)
3 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
2 egg yolks, slightly beaten
2 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups whipped cream
nuts

Combine sugar and flour in a pan. Stir in milk. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until thick and boiling. Boil one minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat, slowly stir half this mixture into egg yolks. Return new mixture to pan with remainder of first mixture. Boil one minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat, blend in butter and vanilla. Cool. Spread on top of cooled cake. When cooled, spread entire cake with whipped cream and sprinkle with chopped nuts.

TASTY 'N TENDER ROUND STEAK

3 pounds beef round steak, ½ inch thick
¼ cup flour
2 teaspoons dry mustard
1½ teaspoons salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
¼ cup shortening
½ cup water
1 tablespoon worcestershire sauce

Cut round steak in serving size pieces. Trim excess fat from meat, slash edges to prevent curling. Combine flour, dry mustard, salt and pepper, use to coat meat. Reserve remaining flour mixture. Melt shortening in skillet, brown meat, half at a time, on both sides. Push meat to one side, stir in reserved flour mixture. Combine water and worcestershire, stir into skillet mixture. Cook and stir until thickened and bubbly, about two to three minutes, reduce heat. Cover and simmer for one to 1¼ hours or until meat is tender. Remove meat to warmed platter. Skim excess fat from gravy, drizzle gravy over meat.

Pine Grove, Pa.

JAMBALAYA

1½ cups diced cooked ham
1 cup chopped onion
¾ cup sliced celery
1 clove garlic, minced
1 medium green pepper, cut in thin strips
2 tablespoons oil
1 can chicken broth
1 can tomato sauce
¾ cup water
1 cup chopped cooked chicken
¾ cup uncooked rice
2 tablespoons minced parsley
¼ teaspoon worcestershire sauce
1/8 teaspoon pepper

Saute ham, onion, celery, garlic, and pepper in oil until lightly browned. Add remaining ingredients. Bring to a boil, reduce heat and simmer for 40 minutes. Stir occasionally.

APPLE PUNCH

1 quart apple juice
1 cup pineapple juice
1 lemon
¾ cup sugar

Combine ingredients. Chill and serve over ice.

FRUIT PUNCH

1 dozen oranges
1 dozen lemons
2 large cans pineapple juice (46 oz.)
1 large can apricot nectar (46 oz.)
2 quarts apple juice

Squeeze out juice of oranges and lemons. Add other ingredients to mixture. Add water and sugar to the above ingredients to suit taste. Makes about 16 quarts.

COUNTRY FRIED PORK CHOPS

4 pork chops
1 can sliced mushrooms
1 tablespoon shortening
1 can condensed cream of celery soup
½ cup water
¼ teaspoon thyme, crushed
6 whole small white onions
1 cup sliced carrots

In a skillet, brown chops, and mushrooms in shortening. Pour off fat. Stir in soup, water, and thyme. Add onions and carrots. Cover, cook over low heat, about 45 minutes or until tender. Stir now and then. Makes three to four servings.

HUNGARIAN GOULASH

1½ pounds beef cubes
2 tablespoons shortening
1 can condensed tomato soup (10½ oz.)
½ cup sour cream
¾ cup water
1 cup sliced onions
1 tablespoon paprika
1/8 teaspoon pepper
4 medium potatoes (quartered)

In a heavy skillet or pan, brown beef in shortening, pour off fat. Stir in remaining ingredients, except potatoes. Cover cook over low heat for 1½ hours. Stir now and then, add potatoes, cover and cook over low heat for one hour, or until meat is tender. Stir now and then. Makes four servings.

Turnpike ready for holiday weekend

HARRISBURG -- "Take Care, Stay Alert," is the message that Pennsylvania Turnpike employees will be passing on to motorists this Labor Day weekend when record numbers of vehicles are expected to use the 470-mile toll road.

"We anticipate that nearly one million vehicles will use the Turnpike during the four-day holiday period, and because of this heavy traffic volume, we intend to increase our aggressive "Take Care" safety campaign, Jack I. Greenblat, Turnpike chairman said.

Patrols by the Pennsylvania State Police Turnpike Troop will be increased during the holiday period. Unmarked cars, as well as regular patrol cars, will be used in the control of traffic, along with hand-held radar units in the enforcement of the 55-mile speed limit.

Adams County 4-Hers

Conservation needs of Lancaster Co. discussed

By KENDACE BORRY
LANCASTER — As part of their continuing effort to serve the nation's water and soil conservation needs, the Soil Conservation Service and the USDA are in the process of appraising the public's ideas of the resource problems, opportunities, and needs.

On that basis, a meeting was held recently at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center, sponsored by the Lancaster Conservation District and the USDA Soil Conservation Service. During that meeting, interested residents of Lancaster County were given the opportunity to make known their suggestions for future resource conservation programs in Lancaster County.

Those present had many ideas about the way the conservation program should go and the problems that it should focus on.

According to Warren Archibald, district conservationist, Soil Conservation Service, and Tom Johnston, district administrator for the Lancaster Conservation District, concerns dealt mainly with water problems and land use.

Under water concerns, the public expressed interest in preserving the county's quality and quantity of water present. Erosion and sedimentation problems were discussed, including the aspects of rural, urban, stream, reservoir, and excess storm water damage.

Concerning the stormwater which is excess and creates difficulties for area residents, the citizens spoke of using retention type basins in storm water management and surface water control solutions.

Land use topics brought up at the meeting dealt with three main aspects; those of urban sprawl, flood plains, and buildings on the flood plains.

Energy conservation was another subject which was brought up for the county's attention. Also comments were centered on manure management as concerns were expressed on this problem.

Economic problems, and the lack of money to do an adequate job for the problems affecting Lancaster County was a topic time too was spent on during the two hour meeting. Citizens brought out their concern about the lack of adequate funds to carry out legislation, taxes being too high, and the unfairness of the present inheritance taxes.

They also asked for uniformity in the land use plans that are used in the county.

Other comments made during the discussion included a statement concerning the greed of people when they try to get the most out of their soils without caring for it properly; the price of land being too costly; and the fact that developers are buying prime farm land for development, among others.

As part of the evening's meeting, Aaron Z. Stauffer, chairman of the Lancaster Conservation District explained the relationship of the conservation district and the soil conservation service.

He outlined the basic objectives of the conservation district. These included:

The wise use of the county's natural resources;

The provision of the best environment for the health and welfare of the general public by wise planning of air, soil and water conditions, open space, safety, and tax base;

The use and maintenance of the agricultural and non-agricultural lands of the county through the use of sound conservation planning and treatment that will provide the maximum economic or social benefits to the present and future residents;

The promotion of public awareness of environmental relationships within Lancaster County; and

The cooperation with all agencies and groups concerned with planning and use of natural resources;

According to Archibald, all concerns which were brought out at the meeting will be related to higher levels of the Soil Conservation Service. The Lancaster County report will be sent to the state where it will be compiled with other reports before being sent to the national level.

There, programs will be developed to address the major concerns.

Archibald also related that the public will again have the chance to check and approve these programs through formal public review and field hearings.

PennAg convention scheduled

EPHRATA - Historical items from all segments of Pennsylvania agribusiness are being gathered from throughout the state in preparation for the 100th annual convention of Penn-Ag Industries Association. PennAg is the nation's oldest agri-business trade organization. Membership consists of some 400 firms that supply the many goods and services needed by Pennsylvania's farmers.

George W. "Bill" Robinson, a Kremer, Pa., feed dealer and PennAg convention committee chairman, announced that a historical display is ready for the convention, to be held in Harrisburg, Sept. 19-21.

The historical display will be housed in the same area as the commercial exhibits which are a part of every PennAg convention. A record number of exhibitors have registered. Spaces are completely sold out.

It is expected that this will be the most ambitious convention the organization has ever held. The program will include addresses by some of the state's leading political figures, including Governor Milton Shapp. Tours of the state Capitol building and the William Penn Museum in Harrisburg are on the agenda. The annual golf tournament will again be held.

A number of convention reports will deal with the past, present and future of the agribusiness industry. Topics of broad general interest, such as population and energy, will be covered by a number of nationally known authorities in their fields.

Because the convention program itself has such wide appeal, the committee decided for the first time in many years to drop the idea of a separate ladies' program.

Anyone interested in attending the convention is urged to register in advance by contacting PennAg Industries Association, Box 329, Ephrata, Pa. 17522.

Agri Loan Corp. formed

BROWNSTOWN - Paul Wenger, president of The Brownstown National Bank announced that the bank has formed a wholly owned subsidiary known as Brownstown Agri Loan Corp. The corporation was formed to make short and intermediate term loans to local farmers.

The loans will be discounted through the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank and will provide an additional dependable source of agricultural funds for existing and new customers.

Officers are Robert N. Zook, Leola, president; R. Scott Buckwalter, Denver R1, vice president; and Harry E. Wink, Lititz, secretary-treasurer.

Directors are M.A. Stoltzfus, Talmage; Christ E. Riehl, Monterey; Richard D. Mellinger, Leola; R. Scott Buckwalter; Robert N. Zook.

The Brownstown Agri Loan Corp will be headquartered in The Brownstown National Bank's main office in Brownstown.

Despite increasing use of forages, pasture and rangeland, research in these areas is declining, according to Dr. William Templeton, Jr., (insert) director of the United States Department of Agriculture regional forage and pasture research laboratory at Penn State. He says the need for more forage and pasture research has been pointed out at major national and international conferences.

Forage research dwindling while needs increase

By DIETER KRIEG

CAMP HILL — The fact that forage research has been diminishing during times when farmers need to realize optimum productivity from their lands should be a cause of concern to everyone in the country, says Dr. William C. Templeton, Jr., director of the U.S. Regional Pasture Research Laboratory on the Pennsylvania State University campus at University Park. Added to that concern should be the fact that while research funds and activities are being severely trimmed at the public level, a growing populace is taking millions of acres of farmland out of production each year.

Speaking here earlier this month to a gathering of seed dealers and other agriculturalists during the annual Seed Marketing Symposium, sponsored by Beechley-Hardy Seed Co. of Shiremanstown, Templeton said that the Soil Conservation Service completed a study in 1976 which showed that some 2.8 million acres of farmland in the Northeast went for urban development between the years 1967 and 1975. Over 50 per cent of that total was Class I, II or III soil.

Broadening his speech's base, Templeton declared that agricultural research on all levels is suffering as a result of increased enrollments in agricultural colleges. Monies flowing into the learning institution is being used to provide more space and facilities for students, hire more teachers, and otherwise meet the needs of bloating educational budgets.

Templeton contends that there is a clear need for more research, but instead the industry has seen a steady decline of public supported research efforts since 1965. He points out that research funds for corn sorghum and other grains increased by 16 per cent from 1967 to 1974. Soybean research increased by 61 per cent during those years. Pasture, forage, and range research was cut by nine per cent in that span of time.

Citing conclusions of national studies and conferences, the forage and pasture researcher said that the need for more forage and range research is widely recognized as one of the more pressing needs in agriculture today. At a conference on determining future U.S. and world food needs, it was concluded that the area of forage, pasture, and range research is in need of 126 additional scientist-years.

According to Templeton and others close to the subject, increased research in his field of work and study is needed in order to develop forage crop varieties with multiple resistance to insects, diseases, and nematodes, and in seeding technology. Other areas which need more research include forage and legume production, feed value of forages, biological efficiencies, loss reductions, genetically superior crops, and harvesting, storing, and feeding techniques for maximum efficiencies.

In addressing his audience, which numbered about 80, the forage researcher attempted to predict the future of pasture and range research. Admitting that it would take uncommon wisdom and a crystal ball to accurately predict the future, Templeton is basing his judgement on happenings of the past. "As we are people vitally concerned with agriculture, it behooves us to be aware of continuing developments and to strive to direct them for the good of both producers and consumers," he began.

One of the first things that needs to be done, according to Templeton, is finding a true value of forages. "There are very few hard data or statistics which help us to determine very accurately the value of forage crops," he revealed. One study cited by Templeton claims that the value of forages which enter into the production of milk, beef, lamb, and wool is approximately 48 per cent of the value of animals and animal products sold.

Templeton is also emphatic about the need to take land-use into consideration, and ties such developments directly to forage research. He notes that while 2.8 million acres of farmland went out of production from 1967 to 1975, and another 2.7 million acres are being held for urban use, pasture and rangeland use actually increased during those years. He also points out that much of the land coming into use in the Northeast for pasture is unsuitable for conversion to cropland. Accordingly, he stresses a need for forage, pasture and range research. Funding for such work has been slow in coming, however, and he doesn't anticipate much improvement.

He urges farmers and industry men to combine their efforts in a united, solid front to convince legislators and educators that the need for pasture and forage research is real.

On land use, the laboratory director revealed that Pennsylvania lost 6.4 million acres of farmland since 1940. The number of farms in Pennsylvania now is just 31 per cent of what it was during World War II years.

The researcher also noted that beef cattle numbers have increased six-fold since 1940, and an estimated one-third of the farmers in the state work at other jobs 200 or more days per year.

These happenings are indicative of the increase in pasture and range use, Templeton explained. Also, some 15 to 18 million acres of additional land in the Northeast could be used for producing forages if economic conditions favor such use. In light of what has happened in the past, Templeton believes the trend may continue.

According to available research findings, it should be possible to develop the technology for producing approximately 900 pounds of gain from beef cattle, sheep, and goats, or 9000 pounds of milk per acre per year,

Templeton told his listeners. To emphasize his point, he noted that Dr. W.K. Griffith of the Potash and Phosphate Institute, and currently president of the American Forage and Grassland Council, has concluded the technology is available today to double forage production in the Northeast without appreciably changing the acreage for cash crops. Griffith reportedly stresses the need for farmers in the Northeast to rely more on high quality home-produced forages, and less on purchased grain and concentrated feedstuffs.

Templeton admits that any significant changes in forage production and use will depend on complex economic, technological and social developments. "Much additional research will be needed to fully exploit livestock production with forages," he said. "Research requires time. A lead time of at least 10 to 20 years is likely to be needed to obtain answers for solving such complex problems as the utilization of Class III or poorer land," he explained. He emphasizes that to make progress with poorer land is "no small undertaking," and that it is not known whether politicians will support the needed research programs.

Templeton, among others, sees a continued heavy grain export program for the United States and says this should favor the use of forages in livestock production programs. "But concerted, strong efforts are apt to be required to greatly increase forage research in the Northeast and the country as a whole during the next few years," he declared.

Listing no fewer than 48 separate forage research areas of high, very high, or top priority, Templeton says the program is at the mercy of public funding. Of his own facilities and staff at Penn State, he says: "I am convinced we do not have a critical mass of scientists to do the job required of a regional research facility serving 12 states. We have 11 researchers at present and have indicated to our administrators the need for eight additional professionals."

He notes also that if he were to get the eight additional scientists he will also need more space and equipment at the laboratory.

"I am convinced that the national welfare will be served by well-planned, productive research pointed toward needs of the next generation. As we and others in the region try to improve our forage-research productivity, we solicit your comments, criticism and support," he concluded.

YOU'VE HEARD THE TALK.

There's a better way to dry grain. It's called CHILLCURING™ because it means drying without heat. Here's what the talk is all about.

THE GRAIN

Every kernel of grain is alive when it comes out of the field. It is a seed, able to grow because it has the ability to take on moisture. Likewise, it can be kept in a state of preservation by removing the moisture already in it.

But by heating the grain to dry it, the seed life is destroyed.

By removing heat and moisture from the grain, it becomes dormant, and stays alive. Then it can ripen to full weight, losing only water while keeping valuable protein, starches and sugar.

THE SYSTEM

It's simple. Grain goes from the field right to the bin. With the unique AIRFRAME™ and AIRFLOOR™ the grain rests on a solid bed that allows maximum ventilation.

Clean dry air is the best curing medium for the grain. GRAINLAMPS™ provide electric sunshine, cleaning and drying the air beneath the floor, before it passes through the grain.

Fans force air under the floor. Rising through the grain, this dry outside air carries away moisture and heat.

At the peak of the bin a jumbo 40" turbine, the WHIRLCOOLER™, puts nature to work for you. Wind and rising air keeps it turning, venting the system naturally.

A special HARVESTAT™ Control System monitors the curing process. A simple setting controls the GRAINLAMPS™ to make best use of free, natural air.

THE FACTS

Shrinkage factors vary from 1.25% to 1.75% per point of moisture removed. Drying charges have been from 1¢ to 2¢ per point of moisture removed. This cost will only go up.

In this comparison, grain moisture is 27%.

Elmer Lapp, Kinzers, led the parade at the 30th annual Threshermen's Reunion last week with this original Conestoga Wagon pulled by a team of his well-known Belgians.

Threshers' reunion fascinated many

By DIETER KRIEG

KINZERS — The young and old, farmers and city folks, men and women, all found fascination and excitement last week during the 30th annual Threshermen's Reunion, held at the Rough and Tumble Engineers Historical Association's grounds and museum, here. The 4-day event, which was held under nearly perfect weather for each of the four days, even impressed television executives enough to send a film crew for a half day. The result was a several minute presentation on the NBC Nightly News program last Friday evening. Features also appeared in The New York Times and Philadelphia Inquirer, as well as numerous local publications and several broadcasting stations.

More than a score of antique smoke-belching steam traction engines delighted crowds which were estimated at about 10,000 for the four days. Some of the earliest models of tractors powered by internal combustion engines were also in operation. Their strange shapes, sizes, and noises fascinated onlookers, many of whom were here for the first time.

For those not turned on by mechanical horsepower, (a certain unlikelihood at this annual event) a few exhibitors had teams of horses and oxen on hand. In addition, there were scores of stationary engines and a wide variety of antique farm equipment. Early models of washing machines, butter churns, coolers, and pumps were also in action.

As would be expected, organizing this annual celebration and show is no small task. A group of 17 devoted men who make up the board of directors and officers of the Rough and Tumble Engineers Historical Association are at the core of organizational efforts. They're in charge of numerous committees which bring about the final project: one of the most impressive steam and antique farm equipment shows in the East.

Wilmer J. Eshelman, announcer for events at Rough and Tumble, stands next to a steam engine which boasts a 12-foot diameter flywheel. The heavy unit packs an unknown number of horsepower. Dimensions include an 18-inch bore, and 48-inch stroke. The machine was formerly used to power a paper mill in Maryland.

"Just to get the parade together is quite a task," admits Amos Stauffer, the organization's modest, easy-mannered, but hard working president. The parade he referred to took place each afternoon and featured some 85 to 90 pieces of equipment. They all passed the reviewing stand while camera shutters clicked and home movie cameras hummed.

Although the organization has been hampered in years past by burdensome debts, Stauffer says that current liabilities are being paid off in good fashion. Nonetheless, the association and museum continue to seek support for improvements and additions.

One of the improvements Stauffer and his association have in mind is an enlargement of the museum which houses stationary steam engines. Their largest model, which boasts a 12-foot diameter flywheel, is currently out-of doors. "We'd like to extend the building and have it under roof," Stauffer commented. Another proposed project would allow the organization to feature a permanent and ongoing threshermen's display. Complete with live steam, the addition is expected to draw attention from area residents as well as thousands of tourists who come through Lancaster County each Summer.

When strength, economical space
are combined . . .

With Rigidply Laminated Rafters you get a lot more than a quality farm building. First, all of your inside space is useful, with a clear span from floor to ridge. Second, you have maximum resistance to wind and snow — because laminated rafters are far stronger than the wood itself. Third, the attractive arches provide all of the roof support, while providing you with complete freedom for a more efficient interior designed to your very own needs.

THE BANK BARN

The antique machinery and engine buff had his work cut out for him as he toured the grounds of the Historical Association. One building was filled with stationary steam engines which were in operation during portions of each day. Their well-oiled pistons powered smooth-running flywheels. Only a few huffs and puffs could be heard as the engines of a gone era spun nostalgia.

In another barn, some of the earliest models of internal combustion engines were on display. Most were operating. In contrast to the steady roar or hum of modern engines, these early monsters of steel and iron fired sporadically. Their "coughing" sounded hard and heavy, and was punctuated regularly by noisy "coughing" and "spitting." Somewhat frightening to the youngest visitors, these forefathers of our modern V-8's ran as smoothly as the day they were new. It was evidence of the devotion and skill that went into the restoration and maintenance of these machines.

Outside of the several buildings which housed engines and displays were rows and rows of both steam-powered and internal combustion traction engines. Again, their appearance and performance proved their owners' dedication. A number of implements such as old reapers, binders, balers, mowers, and threshing machines were also on hand. During some parts of the day many of these machines were put to work and for a short time the fascinating old days of threshing were brought back to life. Men with dust and sweat covering their bodies stood atop loads of wheat sheaves or beside belts which danced in a symphony of motion. Smoke and steam added their own special touches and scents to the scene. To top it off, the unusual sounds of a calliope gave visitors a real earful of the "good old days."

Some of the other attractions of the event included water rams, antique household items, quilts, displays of small engines and machines, and even a photography studio which featured tinplate pictures.

Some 20 steam-powered tractors were in action at the Threshermen's Reunion last week.

The latter enterprise was brought to Kinzers by a former Florida studio photographer who exchanged modern methods for those of the 19th century. Dressed in 1880 fashions and sporting a mustache, the young man conducted his business from a horsedrawn buggy.

(Turn to Page 58)

Bill Handley of Virginia pulled a team of oxen and an old logger's cart before the reviewing stands, showing visitors how logs were lifted and transported in the old days.

A variety of unusual early model tractors and farm equipment were on hand for the 30th Threshermen's Reunion at the Rough and Tumble Engineers' grounds near Kinzers.

Threshers' reunion

"Watch our smoke," is what the Rough and Tumble engineers like to tell visitors, and there was a lot of it when antique engines such as this one put their "muscles" to work.

The Rough and Tumble Engineers Historical Association maintains its facilities and grounds for the purpose of preserving the lifestyles of farm folk from two or three or more generations ago. Although steam and other antique engines and threshing reenactments are a specialty, there was a lot more than that going on here last week. There was something for everyone, regardless of whether he or she had threshers' dust and smoke in the blood when they came. If they didn't have it when they came, it seemed sure they did when they left.

Nitrite action clarified

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture has clarified actions taken recently concerning the use of nitrites, nitrates and ascorbates in bacon.

Carol Tucker Foreman, assistant secretary of agriculture for food and consumer services, said the clarifications were being issued to eliminate some confusion which arose since USDA published regulations on May 16 to eliminate carcinogenic nitrosamines from fried bacon and to reduce the nitrite level in bacon.

The amended regulations, published in the July 25 Federal Register, clarify who is responsible for conducting tests if confirmable levels of nitrosamines are found. There was also confusion as to which particular lots of bacon were to be retained.

In addition, the requirement that confirmable levels of nitrosamines be lowered to 5 parts per billion within one year has been deleted. This action was taken because confusion had arisen over the fact that this provision appeared in both the final rule issued May 16 and in the proposal issued the same day.

The proposal, which would reduce by two-thirds the amount of nitrite presently used in making bacon, remains unchanged by this action. Comments on the proposal are due by Nov. 16.

WANTED:

tractor dealers to make and sell profit!

Case Franchises Available In The Reading & Everett, Pa. Areas.

When you're selling farm machinery, your customers rightfully demand products that will turn them a profit. And being a businessman, you in turn expect a profit from your services.

You both profit with a Case tractor franchise. As a Tractor Specialist, you will sell 14 sizes of farm tractors and a line of heavy-duty tillage tools. Period. You needn't scatter your selling power over the full range of farm machinery. Your service shop is expert on one commodity farm power. Your parts inventory is cleaner and more financially manageable. Your used equipment lot consists largely of faster moving used tractors.

Light construction power too if the Case utility tractor franchise is available in your territory. Call or write us. We'll be glad to outline the full potential of a Case franchise in your area.

LINCOMIX® THE HEAVYWEIGHT

The feed additive for the treatment and control of bloody scours (swine dysentery) from birth to market.

A number of feed additives for bloody scours are on the market
But until today, few could offer such high performance and so few feeding restrictions as Lincomix.

On-farm trials have demonstrated the efficacy of Lincomix. By controlling bloody scours, Lincomix has proven its superior performance in maintaining rate of gain and feed efficiency while reducing death losses.

And Lincomix can be fed in any ration, from starter to finishing — just withdraw six days prior to slaughter. It's available in both complete feeds and supplements for on-farm mixing.

Lincomix — THE HEAVYWEIGHT feed additive for the treatment and control of bloody scours.

Talk to us today about getting Lincomix in your hog rations!

York County DHIA Monthly Report

JULY 1978

Carl Fuhrman, Hanover R3, had the top producing cow in the York County DHIA program. His "Vicki", a 7-year old Holstein, produced 23,521 pounds of milk and 1096 pounds of butterfat. Second high was another 7-year old, "Greta," owned by Galawn Farms of Dover. She produced 27,901 pounds of milk and 884 pounds of butterfat. Both records were for 305 days.

The high average for the month was turned in by Wayne Mummert of East Berlin whose 61 Holsteins produced 51.8 pounds of milk and 2.05 pounds of butterfat per day. Second high was Sinking Springs Farm, Inc., York, with 69 Holsteins averaging 52.9 pounds of milk and 2.03 pounds of butterfat.

Sattazahn wins Kutztown Holstein dairy show

KUTZTOWN — Karen Sattazahn, Womelsdorf, took her two year old Zahnheim Triune Spice, the first placing two year old in the Holstein show to the grand champion ship at the Kutztown Fair Open Class Dairy Show held on Wednesday of this past week. The same animal was named the grand champion in the Junior Class Dairy Show at the Fair.

Reserve champion honors at the show went to Constance Ohlinger, Mohrsville R1, who showed her four year old Reu-Hel Farms Elevation Carol. This cow was also named the reserve champion at the Junior Class Dairy Show.

The Junior champion at the open show was Wendy Shaw, Oley R2, who showed the first place junior yearling, W-S Linden-Loch Tippy Satra.

The reserve junior champion was shown by Helen Seidel, whose cow, Adairland Big Apple Mabel, was named the second place junior yearling.

Judge for the Holstein show was Dr. David Hagen, Chambersburg.

Results of the open classes follow. Most of the youth who placed in the open show were named as winners in the junior class dairy show also.

JULY 1978

A 305-day lactation record of 25,343 pounds of milk and 773 pounds of butterfat topped the milk production list in the Berks County DHIA program. "Bowtie", age 3 years and 9 months at the beginning of her lactation, accomplished the feat and honor for her owner Leroy Howard. The high cow for butterfat was "Tammy," owned by Ray Bicksler. A 5-year old, she produced 23,405 pounds of milk and 968 pounds of butterfat in 305 days.

Concern grows over African swine fever outbreaks

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The nation's hog producers have been urged to be on guard for African swine fever (ASF) by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA).

The deadly swine disease, which cannot be transmitted to human beings by either direct contact or by consumption of pork or pork products, has broken out in the Dominican Republic and poses an immediate threat to hog production in the Southeastern United States and could conceivably spread to other regions.

Typifying the concern over the disease is the American Farm Bureau which wants the U.S. to help Brazil wipe out an outbreak of African swine fever there before the highly infectious disease spreads to this country.

In a letter to Secretary of Agriculture, Bob Bergland, Allan Grant, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, called on the U.S. to offer Brazil "expanded control and eradication assistance."

Grant said the nearly always fatal swine fever is also found in the Dominican Republic and is suspected to have spread to Haiti, but it is "virtually out of control" in Brazil. Grant urged the U.S. to request the Brazilian government to appropriate sufficient indemnity funds to encourage reporting of the disease and depopulation of infected herds.

The farm leader also called for additional research to determine if the hard-to-kill virus can enter this country on coffee, cocoa beans or other imports. The disease is spread primarily through infected pork scraps in raw or improperly cooked garbage fed to swine and may be carried in clothing, equipment, vehicles and possibly by ticks.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has an emergency eradication program involving strict inspections and quarantines if swine fever breaks out in this country.

"With ASF only 125 miles from Puerto Rico, the danger of this feared swine disease entering the United States has greatly increased," says Dr. F.J. Mulhern, administrator of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS).

Mulhern emphasized the danger posed by feeding raw or improperly cooked garbage to swine, which is permitted in some Northeastern states. Pork scraps from infected pigs can carry the live ASF virus. If such scraps are fed in garbage that has not been thoroughly cooked, the virus can be passed on to susceptible swine, causing an ASF outbreak.

"In states where feeding garbage to swine is permitted, regulations require anyone feeding garbage to cook the garbage at 212 degrees for 30 minutes to kill disease-causing virus and bacteria," said Mulhern. "Cooking garbage is particularly critical now that ASF is so close to the United States. All it takes is one infected pork scrap to start an outbreak."

ASF was found in Brazil in June and has spread rapidly in that country. It was confirmed in the Dominican Republic on July 8. The only other introduction of ASF into the western hemisphere occurred in Cuba in 1971 and resulted in the loss of over one-third of that country's swine before it was eradicated.

"The ASF virus found in Brazil and the Dominican Republic may have caused milk illness initially before gathering strength. Our major concern has been the ASF virus that can kill 100 per cent of affected swine in a week, but this milder form of ASF could be even more dangerous. It may enter the United States and spread unchecked before it kills enough swine to make itself known."

Mulhern stated that since there is no vaccine for this disease, the only effective way to prevent ASF from spreading unchecked is to find cases early and eradicate the disease quickly. To do this, APHIS officials are asking all swine owners to inspect their animals daily for signs of disease and report suspicious conditions immediately to local, state or federal veterinarians.

Symptoms of ASF closely resemble those of hog cholera and may include, high temperature, weakness, tendency to huddle together as if cold, red blotches on the skin, higher than usual death losses, little or no response to antibiotics.

"Prompt reporting of disease conditions will make all the difference in stopping African swine fever," said Mulhern. "We need the help of all hog raisers in the surveillance effort."

NOTICE: Pullers — Residents of New Jersey

Special trophy will be awarded to top points winner in each class for total points of three pulls. (Special Award open to NJ Residents only)

Six pullers reach paydirt

THE BUCK — Tractor pulling enthusiasts who visited the Buck Tractor Pulls on Aug. 19 were treated to six full pulls, an unusual happening during contests where a good distance and winning pull is often just 250 feet or less.

The onslaught of full pulls — a complete run of the 300-foot track — came in the 5000 pound modified and 9000 pound open classes. Powerful engines jetted smoke into the August evening sky and tires scratched the dust wildly as one competitor after another swept through the end-zone in command of hundreds of mechanical horses. Some of the engines develop more than 1000 horsepower.

Gary Mills, a regular puller from Fallston, Md., steered a 427 cubic inch Chevy powered machine to victory in the 5000 pound modified class. He dragged the sled for the full distance on his first attempt and eventually won with an effort of 264 feet and 10 inches during the pull-off. The second slot was won by Eugene Spickler of Elizabethtown who managed a pull of 253-8 after having gone the full distance in his first try. His rig was powered by two Chevy engines. In third place was Ted Houck of Gap, driving a third Chevy-powered tractor. His runs were measured at 300 and 247-7, respectively.

Winner among the three who went the full distance in the 9000 pound open class was Galen Spickler, Elizabethtown, whose drive ended at 288-7. Willard Will of Central City placed second at 283-7, and Elwood Funk, Lititz, was third. All three drove rigs powered by Allison Aircraft engines.

Following are results of other classes:

1. Tom Middleton, Ridgely, Md., IH 1066, 227-10; 2. Robert Riggs, Brookville, Md., JD 4320, 220-1; 3. Amos Stauffer, Ephrata, Deutz 8006, 176-6.

5000 pound super stock

1. Coleman Wheatley, Bethel, Del., JD 4010, 248-7; 2. Jim Brubaker, Quarryville, A-C 180, 244-0; 3. Joseph Bell, Sharpsburg, Md., JD 4010, 75-2.

9000 pound super stock

1. Tom Middleton, 262-7; 2. Robert Riggs, 253-2; 3. Tom Savage, Damascus, Md., JD 4010, 249.

7000 pound modified

1. Curt Stoltz, Myerstown, 427 Chevy, 283-1; 2. Eugene Spickler, 280-10; 3. Don Landis, Berlin, two 440 Dodges, 274-9.

7000 pound super stock

1. Tom Savage, 272-3; 2. Marlin Brubaker, Quarryville, A-C D-21, 260-9; 3. Coleman Wheatley, Bethel, Del., JD 4010, 259-9.

Cumberland County 4-H members recently received special recognition at the State 4-H Achievement Days, August 7-8 at the Pennsylvania State University.

The Cumberland County 4-H Horse Judging team placed first in the State wide contest. Team members include Judy Long of RD, Carlisle; Betsy Nichols, Mechanicsburg; Deb King, RD, Mechanicsburg and Cindy Otto of RD, Carlisle.

Betsy Nichols placed third in the State wide contest. Team mates Deb King and Judy Long placed ninth and thirteenth respectively.

The team was coached by Miss Barbara Rebert, RD, Mechanicsburg. The team has won the right to represent Pennsylvania 4-H Clubs at the American Quarterhorse Conferences held at Columbus, Ohio and at the National 4-H Horse Judging Contest that will be held in Harrisburg at the Keystone Livestock Exposition.

4-H club camps out

DAVISBURG - David-sburg 4-H Club held their first over-night camp-out on the farm of Lorne Detter with the attendance of thirty. The club held their monthly meeting in the evening and campfire refreshments were served.

Games as soft-ball, horse-shows, volley-ball, soccer, practice for the olympics and games made up on the spur of the moment were enjoyed by everyone.

Sunday morning a mini church service was held.

Masayo Matsukaws sang several songs in Japanese. Masayo is an AFS student from Japan and she is staying with the Detter's for this year. She will be attending Dover Area High School. Lorne Detter played his guitar and sang also.

P.L. Rohrer firm has praise for new seed corn variety

SMOKETOWN — A new line of seedcorn introduced to this area by P.L. Rohrer & Bros., Inc., has been extremely well received by local growers, according to Willis Rohrer, president of the Smoketown seed firm.

"We've been involved in seedcorn distribution since 1940, but seldom have we seen such interest and enthusiasm as has been created by the new HP seedcorn, said Rohrer, adding that these hybrids were introduced only this year "more or less on a trial basis."

"This is some of the best looking corn we have ever seen," said Ralph Garber referring to demonstration plantings made at several locations. As sales coordinator at Rohrer's, Garber has been responsible for

There are farmers stopping by nearly every day to look over these plots, according to Garber. "Nearly everyone we've talked to has been very impressed by the vigorous growth and healthy appearance of the corn."

The Rohrer's have distributed corn hybrids for DeKalb since 1940 and in recent years became associated with North American Plant Breeders (NAPB) as distributors for other types of seeds. NAPB reportedly is one of the country's most prestigious breeders of forages, notably Apollo alfalfa. This was the first commercial variety offering high levels of resistance to Phytophthora disease, also known as "wet foot" condition in alfalfa. Still newer in Vanguard, a variety bred to overcome another important alfalfa disease, anthracnose. Frequently referred to as "Summer decline", anthracnose, like Phytophthora, is said to have caused significant losses in Pennsylvania.

"We weren't interested in the corn at first, as we already represented a major seedcorn line. But two of our people, visiting NAPB facilities in the Midwest on other business, came back very enthused about this growing phase of the plant breeder's operations," Willis Rohrer recalled.

In the Big Valley area, not far from State College, a corn demonstration plot was put in under the sponsorship of one of Rohrer's wholesale clients, Union Mill Soil Service at Belleville. Ray Average placements in the 21 states during the past nine weeks were eight per cent above a year ago.

The number of broiler-fryers slaughtered in Pennsylvania under federal inspection during the week ending August 2, was 1,772,000, with an average weight of 3.93 pounds.

A National Highway Traffic Safety Administration report estimates that 200,000 lives have been saved since the Safety Act of 1966, which began the chain of safety improvements in our passenger cars.

HARRISBURG -- Placements of broiler chicks in the commonwealth during the week ending August 12 were 23 per cent above the corresponding week a year earlier, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service.

Placements totaled 2,037,000, three per cent above the previous week. Average placements of broiler chicks in Pennsylvania during the past nine weeks were 15 per cent above a year earlier.

In the 21 key poultry producing states placements were 68,166,000, two per cent below the previous week but seven per cent more than the same week a year earlier.

thereafter, Peter's older brother, John, joined the business, which became incorporated in 1949.

The firm's distribution is concentrated in Lancaster and adjoining counties, although orders are filled for customers as far away as New Jersey. One of the firm's six sales representatives is located in Maryland. In addition to the forage seeds, soybeans, and hybrid corn, other types of seeds handled by Rohrer's include cereals, such as wheat, barley, and oats, and also lawn grasses.

Vent-O-Matic's VER Can Save You Thousands of Dollars Per Year!

We always said ventilation efficiency is best measured by the cubic feet of air moved for each watt of electricity used.

Now, specialists are stressing the importance of VER — Ventilation Efficiency Ratio — and Vent-O-Matic can give you this information with its fans.

Test results from the Tuscarora wind tunnel laboratory prove that Vent-O-Matic fans are the most efficient on the market. They were designed that way. Vent-O-Matic fans can save enough electricity to pay for themselves in less than three years. And, going still further, a Vent-O-Matic System can save up to 30% of the brooding heating fuel because of its heat-saving design principle.

These benefits are extremely important when you consider this statement from Pennsylvania State University: "In the last five years the cost of electricity has doubled while brooding fuel cost has tripled. If this rate continues, the poultry industry will be gone from Pennsylvania by 1982."

Whether you have poultry, dairy, veal calves or swine, shouldn't you know the VER of your ventilating system? We'll be glad to send you the figures on the kind of energy efficiency and heat-saving you get with Vent-O-Matic. Write — or call us — today.

Colored breed dairy show held at Kutztown Fair

KUTZTOWN — As part of the activities of the Kutztown Fair last week, the dairy colored breeds show was held with both an open and junior division.

In the Ayrshire division Christine Dietrich showed the grand champion animal in both the open and the junior show. The Ambler R1 resident showed her first place intermediate calf, Miss Lucky Star, to take the top honors.

She also showed the reserve champion in the Ayrshires, with her first place junior yearling, Commanders Miss Noel, winning that honor.

A three year old cow, KC Arnolds Halyanrds Mindy, shown by Robert Smith Bethel R2, was named the grand champion in the Guernsey open classes. As with the winners already mentioned, the cow was also named the grand champion in the junior show.

Jon Zollers, Mertztown R2, was the showman of the reserve champion Guernsey, with his two year old cow, Dreibelbis Hornet Anita.

In the Jersey division, Patricia Dreisbach's Wilderness A.S.M. Denim, the first placing three year old, was named champion. She also showed the reserve champion cow, a two year old named Wilderness Mandate Gale.

Complete results of the show follow:

SAVE TIME, SAVE HAY!

NEW IDEA MODEL 272 CUT/DITIONER

Model 272
7 Foot Cut/Ditioner

HIGH CAPACITY, TROUBLE-FREE OPERATION, Non-Plug, Non-Stop

The rugged, plug-free 7 ft. 272 Cut/Ditioner is built for farmers who want premium quality hay. It handles light or heavy stands. You'll get fast drying, high quality hay from a machine that costs much less than comparable mower-conditioners. Low on maintenance, too!

Model 279

Less Maintenance . . . More Production

This is a high-capacity workhorse that will breeze through hay fields at a rate of up to five acres an hour taking a full 9 foot cut. Virtually plug-free, it will handle the heaviest crops under the toughest conditions fast. Produces the kind of hay livestock prefer. It's softer!

The Belt Drive Rake is the quiet, smooth way to build fluffy windrows.

402 Belt Drive Rake

Smoothly, quietly, it rakes an exceptionally clean 8-1/2 foot width with minimum leaf shattering and builds fluffy, uniform windrows. The straight axle design, working with the spring suspension with friction brake, reduces basket bounce, even on rough terrain.

Available with either front wheel or hitch jack. The front wheel acts as a gauge wheel and follows the ground contour closely for a cleaner job of raking and reduces tooth wear. Further, the front wheel permits the

The Bale King

Look for the star. It's your way of knowing the bale hasn't been tightly wound, squeezed and compacted all the way from the center out. The Avco New Idea Bale King gives you the star in the center that tells you the hay is still soft. The bale is compacted from the outside inward to give a hard wrap for extra protection against the weather as well as shape retention in storage.

Look for positive, easy start. The open chamber design and positive-start pickup feeds hay, straw, or cornstalks right into the chamber. You can stay right in your tractor seat for easy, safe operation from start to finish.

Conf. committee approves CFTC bill

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A Senate-House Conference Committee Thursday reached agreement on legislation extending the life of Commodity Futures Trading Commission for four years and strengthening regulation of the $1.1 trillion commodity futures industry. Senator Herman E. Talmadge of Georgia, chairman of the Senate Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry who headed the Senate Conference, said the bill will provide greater safeguards for the investing public and for producers of agricultural commodities, which make up a substantial part of futures trading.

The Conference-approved bill now goes to the House and Senate for final Congressional action.

The Conference eliminated a provision added on the House floor that would have required all export sales of any commodity (except onions) to be reported within 48 hours to the Commission. Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland and a number of commodity groups strongly opposed the reporting provision. Under existing law, major export sales are reported on a regular basis to the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The bill contains many new provisions designed to strengthen regulations of futures trading and to protect investors against fraudulent activities. It is also intended to provide greater stability in futures trading, which frequently significantly affects prices farmers receive for agricultural commodities.

The measure provides much stiffer criminal penalties — both in fines and prison terms — for persons in the futures industry who are convicted of embezzlement, false representation, theft, fraud, market manipulation and other unlawful activities.

The bill as agreed to by the Conference calls for a study by the U.S. Department of Agriculture of potato marketing and potato futures trading, including rules and regulations of the Commission over such trading. Recommendations for legislative or regulatory changes growing out of the study would be submitted to the Congress.

Unwanted mushrooms appearing now

NEWARK, Del. — Mushrooms are fine for soups and steaks. But when they pop up in one's lawn and garden — that's a different story.

Mushrooms, or toadstools, are the fruiting bodies of certain fungus organisms. These fungi grow on rotting wood, leafmold and other organic matter in and on the soil. The recent rainy weather has favored their development and they're suddenly springing up all over the place.

Chief objections to mushrooms are their poisonous reputation, unsightly appearance and damage to turfgrass. Few of them are really poisonous, but one should play it safe, and warn children never to eat wild mushrooms.

Mushrooms vary in size, shape and color. Though interesting in themselves or in a woodland setting, they don't add much to the lawn of other garden areas. And in large numbers they can make it pretty slippery under foot.

Most mushroom fungi are actually beneficial, serving to break down organic matter into soil-enriching humus. Among the exceptions are those that cause fairy rings in lawns. These are circles or arcs of dark green grass — sometimes with an inner area of weakened or dead grass. Mushrooms often appear in these rings during wet weather.

A person can eliminate unwanted mushrooms by mowing, raking or hand-picking. When practical, one can dig up the bits of buried wood or other organic debris from which they grow.

Fairy rings are harder to control than other types. A person can often disguise them simply by keeping the lawn well fertilized and watered. Sometimes, however, it's necessary to replace the infected soil with fresh, fungus-free earth. Another alternative is to drench the area with a solution of Captan fungicide.

Conn. seed firm settles

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Derby Seed Co., Derby, Conn., has paid $1,050 to settle a case involving alleged violations of a federal truth-in-labeling law. U.S. Department of Agriculture officials had charged the firm with violating the Federal Seed Act, a law intended to protect farmers and consumers who buy seed.

Clyde R. Edwards, seed official with USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, said the firm, in agreeing to the settlement, neither admitted nor denied the charges.

The case involved three shipments of perennial and annual ryegrass seed to Massachusetts, New Jersey, and Rhode Island in 1975 and 1977.

Brucellosis indemnity payments raised

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture has increased the brucellosis indemnity rates for cattle by a maximum of $150. The new rules also require the initiation of payment for certain female calves. The federal government indemnity rates are now $250 for registered cattle, $150 for non-registered dairy cattle and $25 for heifer calves destroyed because of brucellosis — up from $100, $50, and zero respectively. The $50 rate for non-registered beef cattle remains unchanged.

Paul Becton, director of brucellosis eradication for USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, said the rate increase for specified non-registered dairy cattle was necessary because their value exceeds that of cattle not included in the raise.

"This action will help soften the economic blow felt by producers whose herds become affected with brucellosis," said Becton. "The new indemnity rates more closely reflect fair market value of lost animals," he said.

For the first time, indemnity is available for certain female calves. Becton said this policy has been instituted because those born from infected dams may be potential carriers of brucellosis.

Brucellosis, called undulant fever when contracted by man, causes losses to the livestock industry through abortion, decreased milk yields and the need to replace infected animals.

Many national, regional and state dairy and purebred organizations, expressed their support of the rate increase, which is expected to encourage greater participation by producers in the cooperative state - federal brucellosis eradication program. Owners who must sacrifice infected animals receive both the revised indemnity payments and salvage. In addition, some states provide indemnity to supplement that provided by the federal government.

Reading Fair to honor farm family

READING — The Reading Fair will return this year in its true agricultural tradition of the past when gates are opened Sept. 11. Activities continue through the 16th.

For the 22nd year one of the major events kicking off the "Great in '78" Reading Fair will be the awards banquet honoring the Outstanding Farm Family of Berks County plus 4-H and F.F.A. winners. Of the 104 state sanctioned fairs in Pennsylvania, the Reading Fair is the only one that has maintained the farm family selection for this length of time.

The Outstanding Farm Family for 1978 will be selected from entries nominated by the 13 Sub-Granges of Berks County. Deadline for these entries is August 18th. As in previous years, the farm family, the 4-H Club boy and girl selected by Extension and the F.F.A. and F.H.A. girl selected by vocational agriculture and their families will be honored at a banquet on Tuesday evening, Sept. 5 at the Fleetwood Grange Hall, located on Route 662, just outside of Fleetwood. Other accolades accorded to the 1978 Outstanding Farm Family will be the "red carpet" treatment through all six days of this year's Reading Fair, plus a gift certificate in the amount of $600.00. Other awards will be given to the F.F.A. outstanding boy or girl, the F.H.A. outstanding girl and the 4-H outstanding boy and girl, plus an invitation for their families to the awards banquet. Previous winners will also be invited.

If you're planning to buy an electrically heated home...

Energy-Efficient Homes Offer More

Take windows and doors for instance PP&L approved Energy Efficient Homes must have either double-pane insulated windows or storm windows as a minimum requirement. All exterior doors must be the "insulated" type or have storm doors installed.

Equally important, is what goes around window and door frames. Cracks must be tightly sealed against leaks. It's done by packing in strips of insulation or "foaming in" a urethane material that fills even the smallest crevices.

This is but one example of the quality design features you'll find in every Energy Efficient Home. There are dozens more covering everything from wall and ceiling insulation down to the heating system and fireplace.

That's why, if you're thinking of a new electrically heated home, it'll pay you to look for one that qualifies for the Energy Efficient Home Award. It's your assurance that you'll be getting the most practical energy-saving features that money can buy.

In the event your builder is not familiar with the building requirements of an Energy Efficient home, call PP&L.

Ask for the residential consultant who can supply you with materials and equipment specifications and builder information.

Business growing strong on the farm

By JERRY WEBB
University of Delaware
NEWARK, Del. — Farming has gone through a long and difficult transition from a time when it was a means of survival to a period when it was a rather pleasant and sought after way of life, toward a time when it will be a business and little more.

There is ample evidence to show that the family farm is not an endangered species and that it will be around for a long, long time. There is also equally impressive evidence to indicate that farm numbers are decreasing, farm sizes are increasing, and the sums of money involved in typical farming operations are staggering. The evidence also shows that those family farms that are prospering are not typical of the way of life so many of us remember. Even though they're operated as family units, most of them have a very business-like approach to things.

So the family farm will probably be around for a long time, but it will become more business oriented, less of a way of life, and more of a means of earning a living. Farmers and their families will recognize fewer differences between themselves and their city cousins and they will find themselves participating in and enjoying most of the same activities.

As farmers find themselves in the main stream of American business, they face new challenges. One of those which is looming large for many mid-Atlantic farmers is what the business community calls mobility. The typical businessman goes where his job is. The profit-oriented industrialist moves his firm where conditions better suit his purpose. That's mobility — but the farmer traditionally clings to the land where he was born. For many farmers in this area clinging is costly, worrisome, and maybe even foolish.

Just because a farmer's father milked cows on the outskirts of Wilmington, Delaware doesn't mean that farmer and that farmer's son must do the same. Land that is worth millions for other purposes might better be devoted to those purposes while that dairyman moves south or west, or perhaps even north to an area better suited to his agricultural enterprise.

Some farmers have done this. They've actually traded farms, moving from the urbanized east to the gentle countryside of the Corn Belt, or to the sunny south, where the winters are milder and dairy profits are potentially higher. Some farmers who were boxed in by urban sprawl have been forced to such drastic measures or be literally closed down by their complaining neighbors.

Others have seen it coming and have gotten out when the opportunity presented itself.

But most farmers have no desire to leave the immediate vicinity where they have always farmed and where their family has always lived. In fact, most farmers count as one of their goals the opportunity for all of their children to either enter into the farm business or to at least find work where they will be close to the home place.

That ideal is rapidly vanishing. Farmers who are struggling on the Delmarva peninsula to rent vast acreages are losing economic advantages because of their physical location. Why not pull up stakes and go south or west where vast chunks of land are still available at much more reasonable prices?

The Internal Revenue Service has made it rather easy for farmers to trade farms. The laws seem to be fairly liberal in the kinds of trades and the tax penalty can be little or nothing. Trading does require some effort on the part of the farmer, and it requires a willingness to leave friends, relatives, and perhaps a lifetime of community involvement to start over in a strange land. But a small million dollar farm on the outskirts of an eastern city can be traded for impressive holdings in some other state. An aging dairyman with a fairly small farm might be able to trade for a large crops farm somewhere else. Or, he might want to get into the egg business, or produce fruits and vegetables.

Here's another possibility. What about the farmer with a small place and outdated buildings who wants to continue in the dairy business? Perhaps he'd be better off to find a suitable

Emergency farm loan program launched

HARRISBURG — State Agriculture Secretary Kent Shelhamer says that Pennsylvania farmers who face a shortage of credit from regular sources or who are particularly hard-hit by the current production cost-price differential may be eligible for emergency loans under the Agricultural Credit Act of 1978 signed August 4 by President Carter.

The Act, farmers who qualify can borrow up to $400,000 at unsubsidized interest rates to sustain normal farm operations or to refinance existing debts. The Farmers

Home Administration, which will administer the program, will guarantee loans by commercial lenders or make loans directly to farmers who lack other sources of necessary credit.

According to the Agriculture Secretary, the program will also double loan limits in regular FmHA programs for farm ownership and operations, raise limits on farm loans made by private lenders and guaranteed by FmHA, and will authorize FmHA to make loans to family farms operated by partnerships, coops and corporations. He noted that the law previously restricted eligibility to farmers operating as individuals.

The interest rates on economic emergency loans made directly by the FmHA will be 8½ per cent. Where FmHA guarantees loans, interest rates are negotiated between the borrower and the lender with the FmHA guaranteeing up to 90 per cent of the loan.

Loans for operating purposes will be made for up to seven years, with rescheduled or consolidated loans having an additional seven year repayment term.

Under special conditions, the FmHA may authorize payment over 20 years.

Loans for annually recurring expenses will be repayable annually.

Under the program, loans are limited to a maximum of $400,000 per borrower. A borrower's combined debt for economic emergency and other types of non-emergency FmHA farm real estate and operating loans may not exceed $650,000.

More information is available through the FmHA offices throughout the state.

NPPC pushing for awareness

DES MOINES, Iowa — More than 100 pork producer leaders from throughout the country met here August 18 to kickoff an intensive six-week "awareness" push.

Using the theme "Is regulatory reason worth a dime?" producers in 35 National Pork Producers Council member states will meet with their congressmen to voice their concerns about government regulations.

In recent months, decisions involving antibiotics, investment tax credit, sulfa, turkey ham, and nitrite have caused confusion and uncertainty within the pork industry.

"And we think it's time to let our congressmen know how we feel and ask their help in seeing that we return reason to regulations," says John Soorholtz, president of the NPPC.

Soorholtz reminded the producers that the state producer associations and NPPC have a solid reputation for getting things done, "mainly because we have always presented a united front and represented all pork producers — never a chosen few producers or a select group of states.

"All we have to do is look at what we've done in the last few months with the sulfa residue problem. USDA has made a big commitment in money and manpower to getting at the bottom of this problem. And there's no doubt in my mind that the only reason this has happened is because all of us worked together — with the coordination of the national office," said Soorholtz.

NPPC staff members updated the leaders on current interest areas and outlined how they should conduct state and district meetings.

Petitions will be circulated among producers and distributed at marketing points. These will be presented to congressmen at the district meetings.

In addition, emphasis will be placed on signing up new members and adding markets to the voluntary funding program. NPPC is the largest commodity group in the country with 80,000 members. And more than 40 million market hogs are being checked off each year.

"But we've got to do more" was Soorholtz's challenge to the industry leaders. "Our strength comes from the numbers of producers we represent and the markets that are working with us.

"And numbers are what Washington responds to."

There are 9 million boats and 50 million persons engaged in recreational boating in the United States, the U.S. Coast Guard says.

A National Highway Traffic Safety Administration study shows the chance of fatal head injury appears to be at least four times greater for the motorcyclist not wearing a helmet compared with the cyclist wearing head gear.

There are more than 5 million motorcycles registered in this country according to figures compiled by the U.S. Department of Transportation.

Walker bill gives tax credit to keep land in agriculture

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Congressman Bob Walker (R-16-Pa.) last week introduced legislation aimed at providing a "new direction in the Nation's efforts to preserve farmland."

The Walker legislation would provide tax incentives to farmland owners who agree not to use or permit their land to be used for a purpose other than farming. He explains:

"This proposal represents an effort to do something positive and forward-looking to keep agricultural land from being developed irresponsibly without initiating programs involving the 'big brotherism' of national land use policies.

"I have introduced this legislation to assure that farmland would be preserved but on the basis of individual landowner initiatives and not on the basis of bureaucratic decision-making in Washington.

"Our farmland is such a precious and highly valuable natural resource that it must be adequately protected from encroachment of development but we must do so without jeopardizing the property rights of individual of Americans," Walker said.

Robert Walker

Under Walker's proposal, a tax credit equaling five per cent of the fair market value of a farm would become available to the owner of the land if he or she agreed not to permit its use for any other purpose than farming. The amount of the credit would be allotted in one-third shares over a three-year period. The owner of the farmland would be eligible for credit on a one-time basis by signing an agreement with the secretary of agriculture formalizing a permanent commitment to keep the land in agricultural production.

2. It would compliment rather than complicate local zoning provisions.

3. It would permit local units of government to have defined areas of farmland which could be assessed for taxation on their value as farmland rather than on their developmental value thus decreasing the property taxes on prime agricultural land.

"I fully realize that this legislation will not be enacted in this Congress," Walker said. "However, the legislation does provide a new vehicle to permit Congress to focus on a key environmental issue in very specific terms."

Walker listed three principle advantages of his approach to farmland preservation.

1. It would provide for Sunday hogs win York 4-H round-up

By JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent
THOMASVILLE - The York Livestock Market is an active supporter of the York County 4-H program. Not only did the auction host the August 16 swine roundup, it also paid $2.20 per pound for the champion animal.

Winning of the top honors at the roundup was a family affair for the Charles Sunday

Buyer of the reserve animal was Earl Livingston's Blair Mountain Stock Farm at Dillsburg,

Pairs competition brought a repeat performance by the sister-brother entries, with Chris taking champion winnings and her 14-year-old brother again getting the reserve nod from judge Ken Ketterer of Newville.

"Pick the right hog," is Chris' suggestion as the first step to take toward raising a top-placing animal. The Sunday's socrat out high-quality feeders at the 70-pound level and fatten them out for four months on pelleted concentrate.

Jon Janney was selected champion fitter during the day-long show. He is son of Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin Janney, Brodbeck's R1. Reserve champion fitter was Michele Bankert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Bankert, Hanover R3.

Showmanship winner was Jeff Wilson of New Freedom and reserve showman was Chris Sunday.

Average price on the total of 39 head at the roundup including the champions was

Without the two top animals, the save average was $58.29 hundredweight.

The York Livestock Market purchased a total of four head and Blair Mountain Stock Farm took home two. Other multiple buyers were Hatfield Packing, four head, Spangler and Sprengle, Inc., three head, and Sechrist Sales, two head.

Also supproting the roundup sale with purchases were Glenville Farm Center, Ray Mummert, Roger Bankert, Den Emerich of Penn Packing, R.L. Myers, Leroy Williams, Donald Leister, Robert Beard,

Freda Swarr wins Lancaster Co. 4-H hog show

By KENDACE BORRY
LANCASTER — Freda Swarr, Manheim R2, topped the 37 other 4-H'ers participating in the Lancaster County 4-H Roundup this past Wednesday. Her 250 pound Hampshire crossbred hog placed first in its class, won the heavyweight championship, and then was named grand champion of the show.

Hatfield Packing Co., Hatfield, represented by Ezra H. Good, bought the champion animal at the sale held the same afternoon. The animal brought $3.01 per pound, beating last year's price by one cent.

This was Freda's first championship, having placed no higher than third in her two previous years of competition. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Swarr, who raise about 150 feeder pigs. The hog came from the farm of Dale Rohrer, also of the Manheim area.

She is a member of the Lititz-Manheim 4-H Community Club and attends Mifflin Training Center, Lancaster.

The reserve champion hog was shown by Michelle Dean, Strasburg R1. This is the young lady's second year of showing hogs in 4-H competition and also her second reserve champion.

Her animal, weighing 235 pounds, was also bought by the Hatfield Packing Company, for the price of $1.70 per pound.

It was also Michelle's second year for being named the best junior fitting and showmanship member. Her hog came from the heavyweight class, the same as the grand champion hog.

Miss Dean is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Freda Swarr, Manheim R2, showed the grand champion pig at the Lancaster County 4-H Roundup. The 250 pound Hampshire crossbred was bought by Hatfield Packing Company, Hatfield, represented by Ezra H. Good.

Dean, and a member of the Penn Manor 4-H Community Club, Lancaster County 4-H Beef and Sheep Club, and the Lampeter-Strasburg Merri-maids and Bashful Beaus.

Retiring from 4-H this year, and still showing that she knows what she is doing, was Bernadine Gish, Elizabethtown. This 18-year-old young lady was named the senior showing and fitting winner for the sixth year in a row, and she will retire from 4-H with her title secure.

Then this Fall she will enter St. Joseph's School of Nursing where she will study to be a registered nurse.

Liz Chapman, Manheim R5, showed the champion trio at the show and the champion pen of ten was shown by Judy Zimmerman, Ephrata R1.

Reserve champion hog was shown by Michelle Dean, Strasburg R1. She also placed first in the junior fitting and showmanship.

Judge for the event was Frank Feeser, Tennytown, Md. There were 176 hogs entered in the show which was held at the Lancaster Stockyards.

Total weight of the animals present was 37,595 pounds, making the average animal weigh around 214 pounds.

Complete results of the show follow.

Good growth conditions needed for roots

NEWARK, Del. — It's the roots below the plow layer, down in the subsoil, that carry corn and soybean plants through short periods of moisture stress. As roots go deeper, the supply of available moisture increases. But roots don't go deep on command. They move in the direction of a favorable environment, points out University of Delaware Extension agronomist Dr. William H. Mitchell.

Good aeration, a favorable pH, an adequate supply of nutrients and available moisture are some of the factors that make good growing conditions for roots. Unfortunately, it is difficult to improve growing conditions in the subsoil. Subsoiling is the most practical approach to the problem, but the effects are often temporary and result in little or no yield increase.

Many of the cultivated, sandy soils of lower Delaware have compacted layers — or traffic pans — at the 10 to 15 inch depth. A close look at corn root systems in 30 irrigated fields on this type of soil shows that shallow rooting is a result of too little water. The agronomist examined corn plants in these fields for members of the "First State Irrigation Project", an Extension program aimed at helping local farmers attain the 200 bushel an acre yields he and his colleagues at the University say are possible with proper crop management.

Mitchell's findings don't support the popular belief that an early-season drought will cause corn roots to go deeper into the soil in search of water. On the contrary, it appears that as the season progresses and plants remove water from com-

This may be the principal reason for the shallow root systems that develop in many corn fields. On several farms where plants were well irrigated, the agronomist found roots at 30 to 40 inch depths. On the other hand, in almost all cases where a moisture stress developed early in the season, corn leaves responded by rolling or twisting and roots were found to be only 12 to 15 inches deep. "Drought doesn't make roots go deeper," says Mitchell. "It may, in fact, cause a very shallow root system to develop."

Swollen, club-like root tips are characteristic of the growth in compacted soil which occurs under drought conditions. This abnormal growth is usually found where roots have passed through the moist and more easily penetrated plow layer and then, as water supplies diminish, come in contact with hard, compacted soil at the 10 to 12 inch depth.

Efforts to correct this problem by subsoiling have been disappointing. Placing subsurface irrigation lines at the bottom of a subsoiling trench has produced a dramatic increase in corn yields, but it appears this has been a result of irrigation and not subsoiling, reports the agronomist.

The subsoil contains plant nutrients such as potassium and manganese as well as badly needed moisture, but these are of little value if there isn't enough rainfall or irrigation to permit roots to penetrate this layer of soil.

Order 4 to be amended

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Under a U.S. Department of Agriculture final decision, the current method of pricing Class I — or fluid use — milk under the Middle Atlantic federal milk marketing order would be continued, but some other order provisions would be changed.

Herbert L. Forest, dairy official with USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, said the amended order still must be approved by at least two-thirds of the dairy farmers operating under the order if the changes are to go into effect. USDA will poll cooperative associations in the market to determine producer approval.

Forest said this final decision is the same as the recommended or tentative decision published in the April 27 Federal Register. The tentative decision was based on a public hearing in Philadelphia last October.

The present method of pricing Class I milk under the order, Forest said, is a basic formula, plus a $2.78 Class I differential. The Minnesota-Wisconsin price serves as the basic formula price under the Middle Atlantic order.

Maintaining this pricing method is essential, Forest said, because the Middle Atlantic price formula is an integral part of a coordinated pricing system for federal milk orders. This coordination is needed to keep Class I prices aligned among handlers on a continuing basis, and to permit milk to move easily among markets, Forest explained.

The decision denies a proposal for a bracketed pricing system and proposals to lower the Class I differential from its present $2.78. Requests by handler and producer groups to reopen the hearing to reconsider the Class I differential issue also were denied.

Proposed order changes would relax provisions for pooling a distributing plant and for diverting producers' milk to nonpool plants when it is not needed for fluid use at a distributing plant. Still another change would allow operators of partially regulated plants to increase Class I sales in the Middle Atlantic order area to a limited extent without becoming fully regulated under the order.

Copies of this final decision may be obtained from Market Administrator Joseph D. Shine, 300 N. Lee St., Rm. 320, Alexandria, Va. 22313; or from the Dairy Division, AMS, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Inedible egg survey conducted

ARLINGTON, Va. — The Poultry and Egg Institute's Shell Egg Section has launched a study to determine the volume and disposition of inedible eggs in this country.

The study is the result of a problem brought to the Shell Egg Section's attention by some Eastern U.S. producer-packer members whose outlet for inedible eggs was suddenly cut off when a leading pet food manufacturer changed its dog food formula, thus sharply reducing the volume of eggs it formerly used. A telephone check of some of the larger packers nationwide revealed that although they were not faced with the same problem as were the Eastern packers, they felt that something should be done to reduce the volume of inedible eggs and more profitably utilize those that are available.

The Institute has engaged Dr. Owen Cotterill of the University of Missouri to chair a committee of leading egg scientists to tackle the problem. The committee has already begun conducting a mail survey of a random sampling of 2,000 U.S. shell egg producers and processors.

Results of the survey in summary form, without disclosing individual responses, will be presented at the Egg Packers and Processors Workshop during PEIA's 49th Annual Fact Finding Conference in Houston on September 14. After Fact Finding, it is expected that one or more research projects will be initiated based on the results of the survey.

Grange meets

RED LION — More than thirty Members of the Red Lion Grange 1781, gathered for a "Cook-out" prior to the regular meeting time on August 19.

During the business session, chaired by Lee Burns, Master, names of members were suggested for new officers for 1978-79 Grange year, with an election of Officers to be held on September 16.

A special meeting will be held Tuesday, August 29 for the purpose of finalizing plans for the Grange booth at the York Interstate Fair.

Gladys Sheffer reported on the Penna. State Grange soft-ball finals, held in Centre County on August 12, where Biglerville Grange, Adams County, won the state title. Schuylkill County won second place in the state competition.

Next meeting of the Grange will be held at 8 p.m., on September 2.

At the stable where I keep my horses, Dollar has become somewhat of a celebrity.

It seems that there is an uncovered hay hole in the ceiling of his stall. And the farmer who owns the barn didn't want anyone to accidentally fall down that hole. So he placed a straw bale over the spot.

A few hours later he came back and the bale of straw was gone. So he put another bale of straw over the hole.

A little later he noticed that that one was gone too. Perplexed, he placed yet a third bale of straw over the hole.

It seems that my horse, who is ever ready to eat anything faintly resembling food, discovered that by standing on his tippy-tip-toes, and stretching his neck with all his might, could just grab the tip of those straw bales and slowly pull them down in his stall.

The result was that when I came to let him out in his pasture, I found him up to his waist in straw, happily munching a bite of it here and there. He didn't care if he was ever turned out again as long as those straw bales kept appearing.

Honestly, what are you going to do with such an animal?

Cumberland Co. 4-H horse roundup held

CARLISLE — The County 4-H Horse Roundup means the end of a 4-H project year for some members. However, for 32 members it qualified them to compete at the eighth county 4-H District Horse contest. It will be held in Lancaster, September 16.

The first two classes of the 4-H Roundup are Junior and Senior Division Grooming and showmanship. Steve Otto, Carlisle won the Junior Division with Vicki Stambaugh, Carlisle, and Teri Furr, Mechanicsburg receiving second and third respectively. Dianne Pecukonis, Mechanicsburg, won the Senior Division, with Cindy Otto, Carlisle, and Alane Hunter, Mechanicsburg, receiving second and third respectively.

There were 29 classes in the roundup which test various aspects of both the riders and horse's abilities. This gives members more than one opportunity to represent the county at the National hog contest entered

AUSTIN, Minn. — W. F. Ruoss, Ephrata, and Franklin Feeser, Taneytown, Md., are two of the exhibitors who delivered hogs in the 1978 Production Tested Barrow Contest. Their barrows have been consigned to the St. Ansgar Test Station which is located some 15 miles south of Austin, Minnesota.

Barrows which complete the test will be slaughtered and appraised in a production-related Carcass Contest at Geo. A. Hormel & Company's Austin, Minn., plant.

delivered barrows to the St. Ansgar (Iowa) Test Station and were entered in the Production Tested Barrow Contest of the National Barrow Show. This year's event will once again be held at the Mower County Fairgrounds in Austin, Minn. The dates are September 11, 12, and 13.

Seven hundred and fifty-seven barrows met the weight and age requirements and were put on official test — an increase over the 700 barrows that had originally been anticipated by John Phillips, superintendent of the National Barrow Show.

Emergency food bill approved

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Senate Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry last week approved legislation authorizing the expenditure of up to $500 million for the purchase of U.S. agricultural commodities to meet urgent humanitarian needs abroad. At its wrap-up meeting for this session, the Committee approved the International Emergency Food Fund bill as a substitute for various House and Senate proposals to establish a grain reserve stockpile to meet international food emergencies.

As approved by the Committee, the bill would create the special $500 million fund for open-market purchases of wheat, corn, rice, peanuts or any other U.S. agricultural commodities for international distribution in food emergencies.

The substitute bill was offered by Senator Bob Dole of Kansas, ranking Republican on the Committee. The Carter Administration supports an emergency wheat reserve.

Under the bill as approved, the secretary of agriculture could purchase commodities for distribution in any foreign country suffering a major disaster or to assist developing countries to meet food needs when limited supplies in this country curtail assistance under the P.L. 480 "Food for Peace" program. The bill specifies that purchases must be made in such a manner as not to disrupt the orderly marketing of farm commodities in this country.

Senator Richard Stone of Florida to create storage space to handle this year's sugar crop.

The Committee adopted an amendment by Stone that would accelerate the maturity date on 1977 sugar price-support loans to August 31, or the effective date of the International Food bill, whichever would be earlier. The amendment would also require the movement of this sugar out of the producing areas to make way for the new crop.

Stone said this action is needed to "avert a disaster," caused by huge surplus supplies of domestic and imported sugar. He said the storage problem is particularly acute in the canesugar areas of Florida and Texas.

The International Food bill was one of several measures approved at last week's meeting. Chairman Herman E. Talmadge of Georgia said this would likely be the final regular meeting at this session of Congress. The Committee's calendar of legislative business for the year has been cleared.

Other legislation approved last week would:

Provide for an assessment of the status of aquaculture in the United States and for the development of a national plan to encourage and support aquaculture, including federal grants and a federally-insured $100 million loan program. Aquaculture is the cultivation of fish and other aquatic organisms living in fresh and salt water. The assessment of aquaculture would be conducted by the Office of Science and Technology Policy in cooperation with the Agriculture, Commerce and Interior Departments and other Federal land state agencies.

Amend the Perishable Agricultural Commodities

Act by authorizing an increase in the maximum annual license fee for fruit and vegetable handlers covered by the Act from $100 to $300. An additional fee of $50 per business unit over a base of 20 branch units up to an aggregate maximum of $1000. The bill also would increase the exemption of retailers and frozen food brokers required to be licensed under the Act to those doing more than $200,000 volume of business annually. At present, the exemption applies to those doing $100,000 volume of business annually.

Sheep show entered

WEST SPRINGFIELD, Mass. — Both Barbara Lynn and Margaret E. Herr, Nix Besser Farm, Narvon; and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Brubaker and Sarah Lynn Brubaker, Blue Acre Hampshires, Lancaster, have each entered a total of ten sheep each in competition at the 1978 Eastern States Exposition Sheep Show at the Big E, West Springfield, Mass.

Margaret Herr has entered two polled Dorset breeding sheep in junior and open competitions, and Barbara Herr has entered two market lambs in competition, and also six polled Dorsets in the junior and open shows.

Mr. and Mrs. Brubaker have entered seven Hampshires in competition and Sarah Lynn, three.

Sarah Lynn will also compete in the "Big E" Lead Line contest in which young women model wool clothes and parade with their sheep shown at halter.

The Eastern States Exposition Sheep Show will also include market lamb judging, shearing contests, fleece judging, a Dorset decorator costume class and handmade wool articles.

Besides agricultural and livestock competitions, the Big E will also feature many free shows for the entire family, crafts, food, midway rides, and exciting exhibits.

The Big E runs Sept. 13 to 24.

NEBA open house set

TUNKHANNOCK -- Saturday, September 9, barn and laboratory doors will be open for inspection at NEBA-Sire Power headquarters, here. Open House '78 will start at 10:30 a.m. with facility tours and collection and laboratory demonstrations.

Open House is to be "family day" this year. NEBA and Sire Power members may purchase tickets from their technician or direct herd salesman for a token fee of $2.00 per immediate family. Tickets will only be sold in advance by NEBA-Sire Power personnel.

"Bull sessions" featuring a parade of Sire Power's newly proven bulls will highlight the afternoon program. Kiddie rides, clowns, and live entertainment should keep the whole family involved in activities. For lunch a beef bar-b-que will be served by Triton Fire Company.

Blue Mt. Gospel Festival set

KEMPTON — Labor Day Weekend, from Thursday, August 31 through Monday, September 4, the Eastmen Quartet and Garden Spot Promotions will jointly present their third annual Blue Mountain Gospel Music Festival.

All events of the Festival will be held at the Kempton Community Grounds in Kempton, Pa., located near Kutztown and Allentown.

The La-Verne Tripp Song Revival from Spartanburg, S.C., will start the program off on Thursday at 8 p.m.

Steve Brubaker of Lancaster, Pa., billed as "A ventriloquist for all ages" will entertain at 3 p.m. on Friday, followed by a gospel concert beginning at 8 p.m. with the Eastmen, Kingsmen, Couriers and DeLawder Family.

At 10 a.m. on Saturday a talent contest will be held with three categories. Winners in each category will receive a $200 cash prize plus a trophy.

Susquehanna Sound Productions will award $500 toward record production for the overall winner.

The Saturday night singing, with six groups, gets under way at 6 p.m. and will feature the Blue Ridge Quartet, Hopper Brothers and Connie, Singing Hemphills, Songmasters, Eastmen, and Jacob Brothers.

Special music and a guest speaker will be provided for the Sunday morning worship service that begins at 10:30 a.m.

Sunday afternoon will bring to the stage the Florida Boys, Rex Nelson Singers, Wendy Bagwell & The Sunliters, Eastmen, Galileans, and Singing Journeymen.

The Labor Day holiday concert, like the Sunday afternoon program, begins at 2 p.m. Appearing on that program will be the Cathedral Quartet, Jerry & The Singing Goffs, Dixie Melody Boys, Eastmen Quartet, Singing Canadians, and the Watchmen.

For advance tickets, talent search entry, or other festival information, write to Garden Spot Promotions, P.O. Box 531, Ephrata, Pa. 17522 (telephone 717/665-3200) or Eastmen Quartet, Box 504, Lansdale Pa. 19446 (telephone 215/234-8505).

The Eastman Quartet will appear as part of the Blue Mt. Gospel Music Festival set to take place Labor Day weekend in Kempton.

"The fiberglass roof makes a big difference... it insulates better than steel, and we get more storage because the breather bags are up out of the way. The feed? Well, our test is up 2 points and we save half a day a week by not having to grind."

Fall pruning recommended

FLEMINGTON, N.J. — Homeowners are asking if it's all right to prune their trees and shrubs in the summertime.

"Only in an emergency. You should wait until the weather gets cooler, perhaps in September, before you do any extensive pruning. The regrowth will be less and won't get nipped by an early frost," says Robert E. Schutzki, agricultural agent in Huntingdon County, N.J.

"However, if you have broken limbs and branches as the result of high winds before a thundertorm, or if the branches are causing a hazard such as rubbing against the house or hanging over the driveway, they should be taken off flush with the trunk of the tree," he says.

For years people thought it necessary to cover pruning wounds with tree paint if the wound was over one inch in diameter. Recent work by plant pathologists with the U.S. Forest Service has shown that this is not necessary. Covering tree wounds with tree paint does not decrease decay but merely satisfies the owner that he has done something to help the tree.

Dead limbs and branches should be removed just as soon as you notice them to avoid tree rot.

Deaths involving motorcycle accidents reached a record 4,082 in 1977 following the repeal of helmet laws in 22 states, the U.S. Department of Transportation reports. In 1976, there were 3,312 motorcycle related highway deaths. During that same period motorcycle registrations increased only one per cent.

The U.S. Department of Transportation's Federal Aviation Administration employs more than 1300 women air traffic controllers.

Md. dairyman named to ag commission

BALTIMORE, Md. — Melvin E. Leppo, Sykesville, an M.C.M.P. director of District 3, Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers, Inc., has been appointed member-at-large to the Maryland Agricultural Commission.

Blair Lee III, acting governor of Maryland, announced the appointment in an executive order.

Although Leppo is an active dairyman, he will be an at-large member representing all of agriculture.

Presently, the Leppo farm operation includes 255 acres which the family owns and another 135 which they rent. They milk 135 Holstein cows with a herd average of 15,000 pounds of milk and 561 pounds of fat. Their major crops are corn, alfalfa, and barley which are used as feed for 285 animals on the feed for 285 animals on the farm. Leppo employs his son in his farm operation.

Leppo is also very involved in agricultural and community organizations. Some of his involvements include: Carroll County D.H.I.A., president; Carroll County Farm Bureau, director and member of the executive committee; Winfield Volunteer Fire Company, charter member; Maryland Mastitis Council, president; and a member of Liberty Reformed Presbyterian Church.

One of Leppo's major involvements is with the Maryland Cooperative Milk Producers, Inc. for which he has served as a director for the past 15 years. He is currently chairman of the MCMP finance committee and a member of the executive committee. He is also a director of the Holly Milk Cooperative. In the past, he served as the chairman of the MCMP Quality Control Committee and as a director for the Dairy Council of the Upper Chesapeake Bay, Inc.

In 1961, Leppo was named Outstanding Young Farmer by the Carroll County Jaycees' and was first runner-up that same year in the Maryland Jaycees' contest. Leppo has been cited five times for superior quality milk production. Two of these times were for excellence, the highest level of achievement.

Project work evaluated in Chester County 4-H round-up

WEST CHESTER — Over 150 4-H'ers and leaders participated in this year's Chester County 4-H Roundup on August 15 at the Stone Barn Restaurant outside of Unionville. The day's activities included judging of exhibits, a fashion show by 4-H clothing members, an entertainment show by 4-H teens, an outdoor luncheon, a dog show, and swimming.

Among those who received grand champion awards for outstanding work in their 4-H project were: Mike Weinstock, broilers and flock management in poultry; Janet Latshaw, entomology I, potatoes, vegetable III; Jon Weinstock, geology II; Barbara Amalong, indoor gardening I; Roberta Ek-dahl, pets; Jacky Mento, self-determined; David Amalong, philately; Sheenan Berk, dogs. All are members of Tri-Community 4-H Club.

Sharon Warren, flower I; Deborah Warren, flower II; Alison Scheib, raspberry, strawberry I.

All are members of the Chester Springs 4-H Club. Martin Parker, forestry I from the London Grove Forestry Club. Joann Wyatt, indoor gardening II, IV; Susan Wright, rabbits; Donna Teeter, vegetable II of the Southern Chester County Community Club. Lori Constein, Let's Explore from the Parkesburg 4-H Club. Cathy McAllister, tomato; Randolph McCordell, vegetable I of the Oxford Agricultural Club.

Seeing Eye 4-H dog show held

FLEMINGTON, N.J. — The Hunterdon County Seeing Eye Club which raises Seeing Eye puppies, held its annual achievement show August 9, which was judged by Mrs. Helen Sweet of Lebanon, N.J.

Jennifer Deal of Glen Gardner and her dog Courtney won for Class A which included dogs 6 months and under. Kristen Waechter of Whitehouse Station and her dog Willow won for Class B which included dogs 6 to 10 months of age. Barbara Hartsell of Pittstown and her dog Cassie won for Class C which included dogs 10 months and older. Miss Hartsell also received the trophy for the best out of the three classes.

Best showman was Christine Locowski of Bloomsbury who worked the best with dogs other than her own.

Those in the club receiving writing paper with their breed on it for best effort were Nancy Hansen and Amy, Gloria Jakubco and Flint, Chip Dombrowski and Marcie, Scheryl Spector and Walter, and Neil Papenfuhs with Coleen.

This project is a cooperative project of the Seeing Eye, Inc. Morristown, N.J. and 4-H'ers in which the 4-H Club member takes care of the puppy and trains it so that it can be used by a blind person. Advice, veterinarian costs and feed costs are provided by the Seeing Eye. If one is interested in more information about this project, please call the 4-H office (609-788-1340) or the leader of the Hunterdon County Seeing Eye Club, Mrs. Elaine Jakubco (609-721-1396).

Under the Federal Ports and Waterways Act of 1972, the U.S. Coast Guard has full authority over ships of any flag operating in U.S. waters to enforce regulations designed to prevent oil spills or other marine hazards.

Lebanon 4-H'ers achievements noted

LEBANON — Twenty-three Lebanon County 4-H'ers recently attended State 4-H Achievement Days at Pennsylvania State University. These 4-H'ers competed with some 1,800 other boys and girls from throughout the Commonwealth in judging, demonstrations, public speaking and consumer education events.

Awards to Lebanon County

4-H'ers were announced last week by Marcia C. Beppler, acting division leader, 4-H Youth, Extension Youth Program.

The horticulture judging team placed second in the state-wide competition. Team members were Bruce Hellerick, third place individual; James Connor, fourth place individual; Melissa Weaver and Michelle Noll.

The consumerama team received blue ribbon honors. Karl Hoke, Beverly Hale, Kathy Gardner and Amy Jo Gebhard were the team members.

In the physical fitness contest the Lebanon County team won fourth place in the overall competition and placed second in the mile relay. The team consisted of Kelly Lauer, Shannon Johnson, Tom Whitman, and Ken Weaver. Kelly Lauer captured the first place individual senior girl honor. Other individuals competing in physical fitness were: Dale Roth, Sandra Miller, and Jeff Feldenzer.

The horse judging team placed 20th with Jeanne Pierce receiving a white merit ribbon in the individual competition. Other team members were Donna Lansberry, Jody Miller, and Lisa Weikel.

Winning blue ribbons and gold medals in the demonstration contest were: Beth Shiner, "Put a Little Color in Your Life;" Megan Connor, "Kitchen Cut-Ups;" and Kristen Clemens, "Moss Baskets - To Give Your Plants a Home." Cindy Gebhard received a blue ribbon for her demonstration, "A Case for Plants."

WHAT'S NEW

NURSERY CAGES FOR PIGS

Sand Livestock Systems, Inc., has introduced new raised cages that can be stacked to increase nursery capacity, and are raised on legs to protect pigs from chilly floors.

One model is manufactured of extruded aircraft aluminum for strength, corrosion resistance, durability and easy cleaning. Available in a 4 foot by 8 foot size, with or without aluminum feeders and nipple waterers, these stackable crates can be installed in new or existing confinement units.

Another model comes equipped with heavy galvanized feeders. The units are built of square, tubular steel frames with 3/8 inch vertical rods and are available in hot dipped galvanized, or coated with rust resistant paint. Nursery pen floors can be heavy wire mesh or expanded metal flooring. These four foot by four foot units are also stackable, and portable. Steel support legs are available.

Sand Livestock Systems builds complete, turn-key confinement facilities throughout the United States. Sand also offers a full line of confinement equipment for both new and replacement installations.

Motor vehicles in the U.S. consume about 328 million gallons of gas each day, according to the Federal Highway Administration.

Details on Sand equipment, including nursery cages, are available from Equipment Sale Division, Sand Livestock Systems, Inc., 1418 25th Street, Columbus, Nebraska 68601. Telephone 402-564-1211.

Allison engines crush Buck competition

THE BUCK — Modified tractors powered by Allison-Aircraft engines flattened competition in the 9000 pound open class at the Buck
Tractor Pulls two weeks ago.
Roaring to a 1-2-3 finish were Galen Spickler of Elizabethtown, Bud Wheeler of Greensburg and Willard Will of Central City. Their respective distances were 283-2, 269-11, and 268-4.

Wheeler, a relative newcomer to the Buck Pulls, was the only one of the three who managed to win two contests last Saturday night.
Although he only placed second in the 9000 pound open class, the western Pennsylvania competitor was charged for victories in the 12,000 open and 7000 pound modified events.

Throttling his rig in the 12,000 pound competition,
Wheeler scored a full pull,
300 feet, easily outperforming runner-up Vern
Over of Sligo who piloted an IH 856 for a distance of 256-10. Third was Willard Will, who was stopped at 252-7.

Wheeler's winning run in the 7000 pound modified class was measured at 289-3, just two feet better than the effort of Greg Manners from Ringoes, N.J. He was behind the wheel of a Case and drove on for 287-2. Dick Zimmerman of Mount Joy placed third with his Dodge powered machine at a distance of 273-5.

Following are the placings of other classes:

7000 pound super stock
1. Tim Stauffer, Ephrata,
Deutz 8006, 270-3; 2. Coleman
Wheatley, Bethel, Del., JD
4020, 258-2; 3. Marlin
Brubaker, Quarryville, AC
D-21, 257-3.

9000 pound super stock
1. Vern Over, 259-10; 2.
Marlin Brubaker, 231-0; 3.
Amos Stauffer, Ephrata,
Deutz 8006, 205-7.

New animal import center begun

NEW YORK -- The nation's largest animal import center at Stewart Airport near Newburgh, N.Y., will cost $5.2 million, the U.S. Department of Agriculture announced. Construction is scheduled to begin this month and be completed by January 1980.

The new center, to be administered by USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS), will replace a similar facility operating since 1903 at Clifton, N.J. APHIS Administrator Francis J. Mulhern explained that the increasing volume of U.S. animal and poultry imports has created a critical need for more space.

"The new import center will accommodate annual imports of some 1800 cattle, 1000 horses, 400 zoo animals and 4000 poultry. This more than triples the capacity of the old Clifton center," Mulhern said.

Mulhern stressed that, one construction is completed, the center will be self-supporting, with all costs borne by commercial importers. Its modern facilities will be used for isolating, examining and testing imported animals to assure that they meet Department animal health standards before being moved to farms, zoo or other destinations.

"The center is a vital link in keeping the United States free of such highly contagious, deadly animal diseases as foot-and-mouth disease, African swine fever and hog cholera," Mulhern said. "These diseases presently occur throughout much of the rest of the world."

To be situated in a park-like setting, the new center will be completely surrounded by a 6-foot chain link fence to assure isolation of the imported animals.

Solid wastes will be incinerated and liquid wastes disposed of by modern sewage treatment methods meeting all federal and state environmental requirements.

Located 75 miles north of New York City, the new center will be staffed by full-time veterinarians, animal health technicians, animal handlers, mechanics and clerical personnel. Most of the staff will be transferred over from the Clifton center.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Weed — Cultivate first to go on vacation? Use these tips from U.S. Department of Agriculture horticulturalist Robert Wearne to prepare the garden for your vacation.

get rid of weeds. Then put mulch around your plants. Newspapers make an inexpensive mulch, spread in layers six sheets thick (no color pages, please). Cover the newspapers with dry leaves or a little dirt to hold them down. They'll keep the weeds from growing while you're away.

Water — Your garden will need water. After you've mulched it, water it thoroughly just before you leave. The mulch will keep the soil moist, and you can dig the newspapers into the garden when you spade it up at the end of the season.

Spray — Get rid of insects and diseases. Flea beetles, cabbage worms and loopers can do a lot of damage while you're gone.

Clean up — Throw old corn stalks and other plants that have quit producing on your compost pile before leaving. Pick any old vegetables. They could draw rats and other pests while you're away.

Replant — You can start a whole new garden or a second planting of certain vegetables while you're basking at the beach, even in August. The growing season will vary depending on where you live in the United States, but a good rule of thumb is to allow 60 days between planting and the first killing frost. Some crops, such as radishes, need 25-30 days. Summer squash takes 70-75. But you can plant kale, cabbage, cauliflower, broccoli, and even tomatoes to stretch the gardening season. For a fast second tomato crop, try rooting the "suckers" that appear in the crotch of the tomato leaf branches.

Harvest — Arrange for friends or neighbors to harvest your crops while you're gone. Rotting vegetables can draw unwelcome visitors, including insects and diseases. Better to give the fruits of your labors away.

Protect plants — Have cardboard boxes or other covering materials ready so neighbors can cover your tomatoes and other crops on cold nights, if you vacation late in the year. This will protect the plants from the early frost that could otherwise damage them.

Timing — But better yet, when you plant your garden next year, plan ahead to coordinate your vacation with the type of crop you're planting. Then you won't be away when the crops arrive.

Wearne offers these further tips to prepare your garden for next year. When the gardening season is completely over, remove the old plants. Put them into a compost, unless you were having trouble with insects and diseases. Then it's best to throw the old plants in the trash.

Have a soil test made. Your county Extension agent, listed in the telephone directory under the name of your county, can tell you how. If the test shows the soil is too acid for the plants you want to grow, apply lime this fall or early winter. If the soil lacks nutrients, apply them in the spring.

You can get additional information, too. The cooperative Extension service prepares bulletins specifically for the state in which you live. Your county Extension agent can help you find what's available. Or, write for a copy of "Growing Vegetables in the Home Garden", home and garden publication 202, from Publications Division, room 507-A, Office of Governmental and Public Affairs, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Business

farm in a less urbanized location and arrange a trade. His neighborhood developer would be only too pleased to buy such a farm and trade him even up.

Watching the number of farmers on the Delmarva peninsula who want to get bigger and noting the steadily increasing land rents, it becomes obvious that all of these farmers cannot continue to expand on that particular piece of real estate. For some, expansion in their present location will be so expensive it may render their farming operation unprofitable.

It's tough to leave home, to load one's belongings in a truck and head west. But million of businessmen do it every year. Perhaps the time is here for some hemmed-in farmers to think about the open spaces that lie to the south and west.

Penn State agronomists honored

UNIVERSITY PARK — Agronomists from Penn State won all three awards for research, teaching, and Extension during meetings of the Northeastern Branch of the American Society of Agronomy held recently at the University of Connecticut.

The research award went to Richard R. Hill, Jr., adjunct professor of plant breeding and agronomist with the Regional Pasture Research Laboratory of the U.S. Department of Agriculture at University Park. Leon J. Johnson, associate professor of soil mineralogy, received the teaching award. The Extension-industry award went to W. Wayne Hinish, professor of agronomy extension.

The society honors three agronomists each year for exceptional contributions to agronomic science, education, and service. Winners receive certificates.

Dr. Johnson was leader of a course improvement project which led to development of a unique study guide and laboratory manual for introductory soil science. This manual has been accepted for publication by a national textbook publisher.

Dr. Hill has become a leading authority on alfalfa breeding and quantitative genetics. The award described Dr. Hill's research as "giving geneticists and plant breeders a much better insight into the kinds and magnitudes of gene actions in plants with complex genetic system." He was also cited for developing principles important to improve the effectiveness of plant breeding procedures.

Dr. Hinish has been responsible for the Pennsylvania Soil Testing Program since 1956. In 1967, he developed a new program that combined soil test values plus soil physical characteristics and soil survey information into a package for determining lime and fertilizer recommendations. At this time Dr. Hinish computerized the program. He also designed a unique test result and treatment recommendation report form that is now used in several states.

N.J. dairy show names winners

FLEMINGTON, N.J. — Jersey Holstein Show held at Flemington Fairgrounds recently. Teets was awarded the Premier Breeder and the Premier Exhibitor trophies.

These awards are based on scores accumulated during the conduct of the show.

Backacres' entries accounted for three first place ribbons in individual classes and two in group classes. Hunterdon Hills Holsteins, Rosemont, was runner-up in the Premier Breeder and Exhibitor competition.

There were close to 100 Holsteins in the show, judged by John Rinehart, Taneytown, Md. The judge placed the classes and commented on the qualities of animals exhibited.

Grand Champion honors

went to Riveaire Astro Sadie, a strong, attractive cow owned by James Sutton, North Branch. Sadie is going on eight years of age, according to her owner, and a daughter of the very highly popular sire, Paclamar Astronaut. Sadie was also recognized as having the first prize "Best Udder" in her class. She took the Senior Champion Rosette on her way to Grand champion honors.

Hunterdon Astro Fife, a daughter of Paclamar Astronaut, was the Reserve Champion Female of the Show. She has been judged first in the Dry Cow Class, also first "Best Udder" in that class. Fife was exhibited by Hunterdon Hills Holsteins.

The Junior Champion Female was Hunterdon Elevation Aruba, shown by Hunterdon Hills Holsteins. She had been first in the Junior Yearling Class.

Recognition and ribbons are also awarded to junior exhibitors, that is, youngsters under 21 years of age, as they competed in the various classes. The Junior Champion Female in the Junior Division was Penn-Breeze Kelly Eleva Missie, shown by Janet Rogers, Pennington.

Senior Champion Female in the Junior Division was Penn-Breeze Connie Charm Kelly, also shown by Janet Rogers. She was first prize 4-year-old in the show.

The Rosette for the Reserve Champion Female in the Junior Division went to Janet's sister, Sandy, with her entry, Penn-Breeze Gaby Elevation Kim.

Highlighting the day's show was the competition for the top youth award, a Registered Calf. This year's calf was donated by Howard J. Sutton, Fairmount. The winner was David Douglass, Pittstown, a member of the Milford 4-H Dairy Club. David had the highest composite score for the day based on records and achievement, fitting and showmanship.

The fatality rate on the nation's highways since 1955 has fallen from 6.34 deaths per 100 million vehicle miles to 3.25 deaths by the end of 1977, according to the U.S. Department of Transportation.

Senate moves to expand farm exports

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Senate Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry recently approved legislation designed to stimulate expanded export of U.S. farm commodities — already a key component in the Nation's foreign trade.

The bill contains provisions that could lead to a substantial increase in sales of U.S. agricultural commodities to Red China, the world's most populous country.

Senator Herman E. Talmadge of Georgia, chairman of the Committee, called the bill a "promising new initiative toward the expansion of overseas sales of American farm commodities."

The bill grew out of separate legislation introduced earlier in this session of Congress by Senators Dick Clark of Iowa, Bob Dole of Kansas, Richard G. Lugar of Indiana, Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois, and the late Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota.

The committee bill would authorize the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) of the U.S. Department of Agriculture to finance some commercial sales of agricultural commodities on intermediate credit terms of three to ten years. Such credit terms are limited to three years under present law.

The new intermediate financing authority could be used for building grain reserve stocks in foreign countries under an International Wheat Agreement or under other stock-piling plans acceptable to the U.S. and subject to conditions to prevent "dumping"; for facilitating export sales of breeding livestock; for establishing port, transportation, marketing, processing and similar trade facilities; and for meeting credit term competition of other agricultural exporting countries.

Under another provision of the bill, CCC credits of up to three years would be authorized for the first time to private exporters of U.S. agricultural commodities who offer deferred payment terms to countries now eligible for three-year CCC credit. This provision is intended to encourage sales prospects among countries that might prefer to deal directly with an exporter rather than CCC, an agency of the U.S. government.

A significant provision of the committee bill would add Red China to the list of countries eligible for direct CCC short-term credit of up to three years. The country would also be included under the new deferred-payment program.

In a further effort to stimulate farm exports, the bill would upgrade American Agricultural Attaches in at least 16 of the Nation's Embassies in countries in which the U.S. has a major agricultural export interest to the status and title of Agricultural Counselors.

It also would authorize the establishment of from six to 25 agricultural trade offices in foreign countries in order to consolidate all farm export activities in a one-stop center under professional direction.

The committee bill is intended to give added stimulus to export sales of U.S. farm commodities that currently total some $26 billion annually.

Agricultural exports are a major positive factor in the Nation's balance of trade. In recent years, the net favorable agricultural trade balance has ranged between $10 and $13 billion annually.

In 1977, an unfavorable U.S. trade balance of $40.1 billion in non-agricultural items — notably oil imports — was reduced to a net deficit of $29.9 billion as a result of U.S. agricultural exports.

Marketing sessions featured

ARLINGTON, Va. — An important part of this year's Fact Finding program are two special marketing sessions which will explore the future of the poultry and egg industry in the institutional/food service area and the future uses of computerization in marketing of product.

The first is a special pre-convention meeting. The PEIA Marketing Council will meet in special session on September 12 from 8:30 a.m. - 10:30 a.m., just prior to the official opening of this year's conference. They will hear a special presentation by Dr. Stephen Mutkoski of Cornell University on "A Look at Poultry and Eggs from the Institutional Perspective." Dr. Mutkoski will discuss the food service industry in the past, its present ramifications and speculation on the role of poultry and egg products in its future.

The second leg of the marketing program at Fact Finding occurs on September 14, 8:00 a.m. - 9:30 a.m., at the Albert Thomas Convention Center, when the PEIA Marketing Workshop will present "NIPFDA Presents a Look at the future of computerized marketing of poultry products." Jim Chiappe*ta of Kenosha

Poultry Company will head a panel comprised of executives in the areas of distribution, processing and retailing who will discuss the present and future role of the computer in the marketing, merchandising, inventory control, product mix and accounting of poultry products.

This session will be open to all Fact Finding attendees.

This year's 49th Annual Fact Finding Conference and Exhibit opens Tuesday, September 12 and runs through Friday, September 15. All activities will be housed in the Albert Thomas Convention Center in the heart of downtown Houston, Texas.

Pheasants sold overseas

UNIVERSITY PARK — Agricultural exports this year may run 5 per cent or more ahead of last year's according to the USDA. Helping to set this new record are Lee and Linda Keifer of L & L Pheasantry of Hegins, Pa., who sell pheasants overseas.

Poultrymen can produce products efficiently in the U.S. where birds and people are able to increase output of acceptable quality per unit input. This allows for low cost production, processing and marketing to help people in other countries be able to afford our products.

The folks at L & L Pheasantry are leaders in this area of international trade. Lee has been marketing hatching eggs, day old chicks and breeding stock of the game bird species such as ringneck pheasant, chukar partridge, bob white quail and wild turkey to buyers overseas for several years now. Thousands of chicks were shipped to Beirut, Lebanon this Summer. Other large shipments have gone to Germany, Poland, Austria, Canada, and South America.

L & L Pheasantry participated in an American Food Exhibit in Caracas, Venezuela in cooperation with the USDA Foreign Agricultural Service in July. They also received the Outstanding Achievement in International Export award at the Second Annual Pennsylvania Trade Conference last year. L & L was one of six Pennsylvania companies selected for this award.

Foreign markets await interest in them, so it is time for people to consider selling abroad.

Farmland values escalating slower

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Farmland prices have increased an average of nine per cent for the year ending Feb. 1, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. The increase is the smallest since 1972, the Department adds.

Combining this with a slight increase in farm size, the average value per operating unit increased 9.7 per cent to $195,800. During the year ending Feb. 1, 1979, the value of farmland is expected to rise another six to 10 per cent, primarily reflecting the pickup in farm income since late in 1977 and the general inflation rate.

The total value of farm real estate was $524 billion on Feb. 1 of this year, up $42 billion from the preceding year. Building values accounted for $90 billion or 17 per cent of the total value. The national average value per acre was $490, with state averages ranging from $93 per acre in New Mexico to $2,051 an acre in New Jersey.

Major land value increases over the survey year were not confined to any particular region, the USDA report says. States with the sharpest gains - 13 per cent or more - included Wisconsin, South Dakota, Mississippi, Louisiana, Missouri, Ohio, Kentucky, and California. Nebraska was the only state showing a decline for the year, down by four per cent. However, between Nov. 1, 1977 and Feb. 1, 1978 land values also moved down slightly in Kansas, New York, North Carolina, and West Virginia.

USDA describes land transactions as a sellers market because of the slowed increase of farm values. The rate of farm transfers has decreased by three per cent. Nevertheless, USDA adds that the sellers market isn't nearly as strong now as what it was in early 1977.

Farm enlargement accounted for 58 per cent of all farmland purchases in the last survey year, compared with a record 63 per cent the year before. Based upon the climbing farm income levels, the rate of transfers is expected to increase in the current year.

Fulton Grange meets

QUARRYVILLE — Harry Baker, Overseer of Fulton Grange 66, presided at their regular business meeting August 14 at Oakryn, Pa. when they supported the Congressional House Agriculture Committee in which they unanimously approved a resolution urging the Food and Drug Administration to await completion of scientific studies before making a final decision on a proposed regulation to force a drastic cut in the use of certain antibiotic drugs at low levels in livestock and poultry feed. They also supported S.B. 843, Printers No. 1139, in the Pa. General Assembly which would amend the Public School Code by permitting a school board to establish its busing routes in the most feasible and economical way. In essence students who plan to provide their own transportation would not be included in the established route buses must follow.

It was announced that members have been working in the evenings trimming and removing excess tree and shrubbery growth and are ready to start painting the Grange hall. More help is welcome.

Mrs. William Rhoades presented the annual memorial service in memory of Mrs. Anna Armstrong, W. Harold Graybeal and Russel Harts...

Members who went on the Grange Canadian tour this month should bring their pictures to the next meeting, August 28. The theme of the program will be "Emergency Help" and there will be a roll call "What would you do if a member became seriously ill during a Grange meeting."

HARRISBURG — The newly-formed Farmers Union Legislative Committee on Wednesday concluded its meeting in Camp Hill, resolving to actively lobby for the benefit of family farmers in Pennsylvania.

The Lecturer, Mrs. William Rhoades, is requesting members to present a talent number at the September 25 meeting and to get in touch with her soon.

Farmers Union, long recognized for its family farm policy initiatives, planned the August 15 and 16 meeting in response to a grassroots request from Pennsylvania members.

Keynote speaker for the meeting was Northumberland County Senator Franklin L. Kury, who explained the possibilities of political involvement by agricultural groups in the law-making process. Kury said to the committee, "Your beliefs cannot possibly be reflected in the law of Commonwealth until you work for that goal—becoming a real action committee."

More than 14 Farmers Union counties in Pennsylvania are represented on the committee, with approximately 25 persons attending the initial meeting at the Penn Harris Motor Inn. In defining its role, the group decided to work to inform and mobilize Pennsylvanians Farmers Union members in state legislative efforts.
